Higher Penalties In Force For Truck Overloading

The Department of Motor Vehicles reported today that enforcement of the new law imposing higher criminal and license penalties for overloading trucks has begun.

Instructions for enforcement of the new law, which was passed at the recent session of the General Assembly, have been issued to license inspectors and highway patrolmen.

Penalties for exceeding gross license limits and maximum gross weight limits on primary highways and posted limits for secondary roads are as follows:

For the first 2,000 pounds or any part thereof, one cent per pound.

For the next 3,000 pounds or any part thereof, two cents per pound.

For each pound in excess of 5,000 pounds, five cents per pound. Limits include the weight of the truck and the load. Penalties will be assessed against resident and non-resident vehicles alike.

The law also authorizes peace officers to hold trucks for purpose of unloading excess weights. They may store vehicles until penalties are paid. The owner is responsible for storage charges. He or the operator must also care for excess loads removed from trucks without liability on the part of the officers, the State or municipalities because of damage or loss of such removed load.

The law further provides that any operator who refuses to permit a vehicle to be weighed or who refuses to drive a vehicle upon scales provided for weighing shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

Under the law, the criminal penalty was increased to a maximum of $100 or 60 days imprisonment or both, fixing the penalty so that a justice of the peace does not have final jurisdiction in a case involving overloading.

Automobile drivers tell Belgrade cops what they intend to do and the policeman, interpreting their horn signals, signals them on. The system is possible because there are so few cars in Yugoslavia.

Plans For 21st Ramp Meeting Is Fast Taking Shape

High up in the Smoky Mountains, the ramps have served notice it's time to start thinking of conventions.

When they got wind of this, officers of the Haywood County Ramp Convention settled on May 13 as the day to pay honor to the little wild vegetable with the big odor.

The occasion will be the 21st annual Ramp Convention at Black Camp Gap.

Hundreds of North Carolinians, along with visitors from many other states, are expected to gather to eat ramps and scrambled eggs, drink black coffee, and join in singing. Frequently there are so many politicians present the affair resembles a political convention.

North Carolina's Secretary of State Thad Eure, an old hand at ramp conventions, will be the guest speaker.

But the center of attention will be the distinctive ramps. They're potent little bulbs, resembling small spring onions in appearance but far more pungent, which thrive in tremendous numbers in the dark and fertile soil of the Black Camp Gap area, 5,000 feet above sea level.

The ramp is considered delectable by old-timers. Some like their ramps scrambled with eggs; for others, no cooking at all is necessary. They take their ramps neat, with cornbread and sometimes, it's rumored, corn liquor on the side.

In charge of the convention are J. N. Powell, president; Bob Gossett, A. W. Parker, and Claud Williams, vice president; and Clarence C. Medford, secretary. All are from Canton.
