Whale Meat

Eskimos regard raw whale meat as the greatest of delicacies. But thorough cooking, with onions, herbs, tomatoes and savory sauces, is the American or British chef's procedure with the whale. Frozen, cellophane-wrapped whale meat has become a common item in many a grocery store across the Atlantic, and a New York concern hopes to popularize the food in this country. With as much as 80,000 pounds of meat sometimes cut from a single animal, even the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service is impressed. It has issued a recipe—mark the day, Nantucket and New Bedford—for a four-helping dinner of roast whale.

Remember When
Years ago, rice was delivered to grocers in bulk, in 100-pound bags, called "pockets." The grocer scooped out and weighed the rice for each individual customer.

White Oak Folks Buy Benches For Community House

MRS. GEORGE BORING
Mountaineer Reporter

White Oak folks enjoyed their Community Development program Saturday night, November 10th, at the Community House.

The meeting was presided over by chairman George Boring. Mrs. Rowe Ledford read a chapter from the scriptures, and prayer was led by Odie Fish.

There was a discussion of the Tobacco Festival and final plans made. There has always been a shortage of seats at the community house. It was explained that the old benches from the Methodist church of Iron Duff were available at a very reasonable price. Everyone voted to buy the benches.

The meeting was then turned over to Mr. and Mrs. Odie Fish, Roslyn Messer, and Gene Messer. They had a well planned program for all ages. Delicious apples were passed out to the grown folks, and candy suckers to the children. The two games that had everyone laughing most was the "necktie relay" and "identification of spoons." In the latter game eight men were dressed in sheets and had to be named. Mrs. Yoder Messer was the only one who identified them all correctly. Door prize was won by Bobby Hunter.

Group singing was then led by Robert Fisher, after which the meeting was dismissed with prayer by France Teague. The next regular meeting will be November 24th, with family night in charge of the Joe Davis family.

Ruth Hunter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hunter, recently had a tonsilectomy at the Haywood County Hospital.

The Prayer Meeting was held at the Pigeon Baptist church Wednesday night, and will be at the home
