AP Newsfeatures
Dear Judy,
In the good old summertime a picnic is The Thing.
A picnic is a perfect excuse for a boy-girl get-together, as any maiden knows. A group of girls offering promises of home-prepared food and cool drinks can entice the most popular boys in their set to a day in the outdoors. If you agree to combine luscious food with some outdoor sport — swimming, boating, fishing, tennis—the lads surely will beat their feet to your retreat.
A summer picnic is the perfect occasion for man-snaring, too. Or didn't you know? It is the time when you can be bait without being suspect: (1) Feminine — Sunnybrook farm dress, home-cooked food, (2) A good sport — enjoying the outdoors, playing his favorite game, (3) Romantic — walking through the woods, listening to a bird sing, admiring the wonders of nature, wading in surf, canoeing, (4) Complimentary — admiring his prowess in building a fire, finding the right path, etc.

You don't want to fall down on any of these opportunities to win his admiration, if not his class ring. So here are some ideas for picnic food we hope will hit him in the right spot:
Dime Bank Budget—Chili Mac and Fruit Skewer. Left-over dimes can be invested in hardboiled eggs, tomatoes, and soda.
To make Chili Mac, empty a can of chili con carne with beans into a pot and heat. Cook spaghetti (thin spaghetti al dente (firm, not too soft)). Pour chili over top of spaghetti and serve with chopped onions sprinkled over the top. (So it's not romantic! But the boys will love the onions.) If the chili needs some jazzing up, take along extra chili powder to add to the cooking chili.
Fruit Skewer: Put alternate chunks of pineapple, marshmallow and pear on a skewer and toast over a fire. This makes a fun dessert for the boys.
Fair-to-middlin' allowance: Hot Dogs, black-eyed peas or beans and salad.
The hot dogs can be cooked over a grill of course, and the boys will certainly fight to see who is chef on that deal. Beans or black-eyed peas can be cooked at home, heated up at the picnic spot.
Fat Wallet Menu: Fried Chicken, Macaroni Salad, Grilled Bananas. Fry the chicken at home, wrap in wax paper in equal portions so that each gets at least leg and breast or thigh.

Make the dressing for cold macaroni by mixing mayonnaise, celery, green pepper and onion with salad oil until moist mixture covers macaroni. Keep cold.
Grilled bananas are made by peeling and brushing with melted butter or margarine. Split bananas lengthwise, being careful not to cut them entirely in half. Place 3 marshmallows in each banana slit. Place bananas on grill over hot coals and grill until marshmallows are melted and bananas are heated. Sprinkle with chopped peanuts.
Here's a sandwich the boys will love. This can be thrown in with any of the above budgets: Combine in a bowl 1 tablespoon grated onion, and one-quarter cup finely chopped parsley. Chop 2 hard-cooked eggs and add onion-parsley mixture. Combine mayonnaise and 1 tsp. curry powder, mix well. Add a 6½-ounce can of chunk-style tuna drained just before serving and mix thoroughly.

CDP Field Days Start Wednesday

The annual Community Development Program farm and home visits will get under way beginning July 29, when Iron Duff residents spend the day at Beaverdam. On August 1, Morning Star will journey to Allens Creek.
An addition to the recreational program this year is a fox horn blowing contest, open to teams of two, either men or women or both. Other features will be group singing, special talent, guessing games in which the whole family can take part, target shooting, horse-shoe pitching and softball games.
Target shooting, also a new arrangement, is set for eight contestants from each community. Teams will consist of two boys under 14, two girls under 15, two men over 14 and two women over 15. Each contestant will be given five shots at a standing position of 50 feet from the target. Guns and ammunition will be furnished at the picnic. At the final field day top marksmen from each division will compete for prizes offered by the Garrett Furniture Company.
Tours for the first week in August include Jonathan Creek, Pigeon on August 4, at Hominy on August 5, at Iron Duff on August 6, at Morning Star on August 7, at West Pigeon on August 8, at Allens Creek on August 9.
