Plowing Field No Hotter Than Heavy Housework, Homemakers Are Warned

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — Housewives: Take it easy on hot days. Don't try to roast a turkey and do the family wash at the same time. You can suffer heat exhaustion in your home as easily as a man plowing a field or digging a ditch outdoors.

Heat exhaustion is not caused by the direct rays of the sun, as is sun stroke, nor is it so serious. It comes mostly when people try to do too much in poorly-ventilated rooms when temperatures and humidity are high. It is more common in people over 40.

"Don't overdo," Breen advises housewives. "Plan your day's housework and cooking program and work in stints. Try circulating if there's no cross-ventilation. Drink lots of water in frequent small drinks. This holds true for everybody in hot weather."

Breen says everyone should watch the amount of heat he can take. "If you feel weak, lie down," he adds. "Rest often. Wear lightweight loose clothing. Cut down on the heavy foods. If you perspire a lot, ask your doctor's advice about taking salt tablets or just plain salt in your drinking water."

Heat exhaustion feels like fainting. You get pale, your skin is cool and moist, you have a weak pulse. This is often accompanied by dizziness, nausea and a low temperature.

The first thing to do for a person with heat exhaustion is to have him lie down and keep quiet. Loosen his clothing and raise his feet a little. Give him salt in one-fourth to one-half teaspoon doses in an average glass of water until he can tolerate it no longer. A cup of coffee or tea is recommended. Keep the patient comfortably warm. If the symptoms persist, call a doctor.

Sunstroke comes primarily from over-exposure to the sun. It is less common than heat exhaustion. It is accompanied by a red face. The skin is hot and dry. The pulse is strong, and the temperature high. The victim may become unconscious. The main thing is to get him to a cool place, out of the sun where the air circulates. Apply ice bags or a wet cloth to his head. Keep him lying down with his head a little raised. Gradually cool his body as a whole. Don't give him any stimulants.

"And call a doctor, quickly," Breen says. "His condition may be serious."

The "Mosquito Coast" of Central America derives its name from the Mosquito Indians and not from mosquitoes, says the National Geographic Society.

He's On The Air

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—An 13 year old Long Beach student has parlayed an auction-bought $100 airplane, two years of pilot experience and plenty of elbow grease into a smooth sailing craft of his own.

Dave Case bought the plane at auction, "odd ball engine, rusty framework and all." After $50 more of materials and untold hours of labor, he successfully tested it, with the engine purring like a kitten.

Already having logged 85 hours of private license time, Dave now seeks a commercial license.

Clothes Make The Man

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)— Informality in dress, brought on by 90-degree weather, has resulted in a loss of dignity on more than one score by Oklahoma legislators.

Rep. Cleeta John Rogers, wearing a sportably cool sport shirt, was addressed as "page" by one of the post office employees whom he sponsored.

Lt. Gov. James E. Berry, seeing a sports shirt-clad figure on the page bench, snapped his fingers (three times and yelled, "Page!" Harold Morgan, state senator, turned but refused to acknowledge the command.

Stenographic Reprisals

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)— A Capitol stenographer, letting off steam in an elevator, was quite unhappy over the fact the Legislature had raised some salaries of state employees but skipped her.

"Did you lobby the legislators?" she was asked. "No," she snapped, "but the next time I walk down the corridor and one of them pinches me I'm going to swat him in the eye."

Foreign Car Divorce

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)— The road to a happily married life turned into a highway of foreign sports car buying — and therefore won an attractive Long Beach woman a divorce.

She told the court her husband preferred cars to furniture. She said he bought four foreign cars, including one costing $4,200, since their 1950 marriage.

The only other property the couple had, she said, included a TV set and a tape recorder, "but not a chair to our name." The judge awarded the TV set to her, the recorder to her husband.

As for foreign cars, she said she has no objection to them. "I drive one myself."

Peacock Trouble

CHICAGO (AP)— Mrs. Sydney Katz called police who doubted her complaint that there was a peacock in the backyard.

Sure enough, there was. Police-men netted the resplendent bird with the help of the animal keeper of a nearby zoo.

Police To The Rescue

DENVER (AP)— Police Capt. Edward Swank rescued a 43-year-old woman, part of whom was caught in the zipper of a new blue evening gown.

Defends Oil Hike

W. W. KEELER, oil corporation official, leads off the industry's defense as he appears before the House Committee on Interstate Commerce in Washington, which is probing oil price hikes. With other representatives of major oil concerns, he thought recent boosts long overdue and necessary to meet higher costs and assure long-term supplies. (International)
