Bible Words to Live by

PHILIPPIANS 4:13 — "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

When I was younger, this verse had little meaning for me; for I felt that I could pretty much do all things for myself, if I put my mind to it. Certainly, when I became an adult, I would be able to do all things by the strength of my right arm and the wisdom of my brain.

But now I know that I cannot do all things by myself; in some things I just do not have the physical strength; in others, I do not have the faith or the courage. But this inability to do all things "on my own" does not fill me with hopelessness and despair. For many things are not needful for me to do. Someone else can do them a lot better. It doesn't concern me, now, that I cannot lift pianos like a furniture-mover; it doesn't concern me, now, that I cannot build bridges, like an engineer; it doesn't concern me, now, that I cannot climb to the summit of Mt. Everest, like a professional mountain-climber. These things do not concern me for I do not feel that they are a part of God's plan for me.

I have complete faith that I can do all things that are needful for me to do — all things that God intends me to do — as I submit myself in humility, to the God of Jesus Christ. When I have a problem, I submit it to Him, in prayer — not attempting to dictate the answer to my prayer, but merely placing the problem in His hands and leaving it there. He always guides me into what experience proves is His answer — the best answer — to my problem; and with His guidance, comes the strength and courage to carry it out. I have proven throughout my life that "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."
