

Star Of New 3D Thriller Is Much Traveled Girl

Aside from airline stewardesses, 21-year-old Lori Nelson believes she has travelled more in the past four years than any other miss of her age in the United States.

The young actress is now starring with John Agar and John Bromfield in Universal-International's new 3-D thriller, "Revenge of the Creature," starting Tuesday at

THE MOST SENSITIVE ROLE. that of the portrayal of Christ, is entrusted to Robert Wilson in Century Films' full-length production, "Day of Triumph," filmed in Eastman Color, opening Wednesday at the Strand Theatre.

'Day Of Triumph' Depicts Highlights Of Christ's Life

Incredible as it may seem, not until now, in all the quarter-century of movie-making since the advent of sound, has Hollywood offered for theater exhibition a full-scale portrayal of Christ.

It has remained for a man of the cloth, Dr. James K. Friedrich, a minister of the Episcopal faith—until now a producer of religious films for churches and television only—to step over the bounds into theatrical film production, with the Biblical drama "Day of Triumph" due Wednesday at the Strand Theatre.

Filmed in Eastman color and wide-screen, the picture tells the story of Jesus' halcyon years culthe Park Theatre.

The new film is a sequel to "The Creature From the Black Lagoon," released last year by the same studio.

Since she was placed under contract by Universal-International when she was just 17, Lori has travelled to the Argentine Film Festival in Buenos Aires, has entertained the troops stationed in Alaska and the Aleutians, and has made eight cross-country trips, visiting every corner of the United States and stopping for interviews and other publicity business in virtually every city of any size in the nation.

For scenes in the current "Revenge of the Creature," young Lori, along with other cast principals and technicians, flew to Marine Studios, in Marineland, Florida, for important underwater scenes in the new film.

With all this travelling, it is difficult to understand how she could have time to play important roles in eleven movies during these four years, but that is her record to date and it proves, if nothing else, that she has been a very busy young lady.

West Pigeon CDP To Enter Farm Contest

By MRS. CLIFTON TERRELL
Community Reporter

The West Pigeon CDP met last Thursday night at the Bethel School cafeteria, with Carson Clark, chairman, in charge of the meeting, and Mrs. Jim Welch in charge of the devotional.

It was announced that the Eljah Deaver Memorial Day will be held Sunday at the Methodist Church and cemetery.

Bob Tippett, assistant county agent, discussed the annual community tours and then introduced Roy Beck, soil conservation specialist, who outlined the details of the Carolina Light and Power Company's "Finer Farms" contest which West Pigeon has been invited to enter. After Mr. Beck showed a film on soil conservation, the CDP voted to participate in the annual contest.

River Road residents served refreshments at the end of the program.

Piedmont Churches Hold Annual Camp At Junaluska Pittsburgh Success Story

Young people from three churches in the Piedmont area of North Carolina conducted a religious camp last week at Camp Junaluska for Girls.

Participating churches were the First Methodist churches of Lexington and Salisbury and the Memorial Methodist Church of Thomasville.

This was the sixth year the camp has been conducted, but the first time it has been held at Camp Junaluska.

"Discovering the Mind of Christ" was the theme of the camp, which was developed in vesper talks by the Rev. E. K. McLarty, Jr. of Salisbury.

The Rev. Harold Robinson of Thomasville was camp director, while the Rev. Howard C. Wilkinson of Lexington gave one of the morning addresses and conducted classes on Indian lore.

Mrs. J. F. Sprull of Lexington was head counselor for girls and supervised programs on missions and marriage. Miss Jane Stentz of Thomasville was song leader and in charge of choir work. Miss Rubie Plant of Salisbury gave one of the morning addresses and directed vesper planning.

Topics discussed by the campers were segregation, alcoholics beverages, courtship, stewardship of time and money, and peace and war. Leader for this last forum was the Rev. Douglas Carricker of Brevard.

The Rev. Johnny Hawkins of Charlotte was in charge of morning devotions and served as a counselor. Life guards were Miss Ann Woodward and James Freeman, both of Salisbury. Camp nurses were Mrs. Bain Harrelson of Salisbury, and Mrs. Frances Smiley of Lexington.

A special feature of the camp was a trip to Soco Gap, the new Methodist Church at Cherokee, the pioneer village at the late Ranger Station, the one at Cherokee, and supper at tooga.

A softball game was also held between the campers and camp staff with victory going to the former.

The National Education Assn. says the United States has a deficit of 340,000 classrooms in its public schools.

In most so-called underdeveloped countries, the expectation of life at birth is about half that in more developed countries.

Two Youth Delegations Visit Lake Junaluska

Two youth delegations from Kansas and Pennsylvania visited the Methodist Church's southeastern summer assembly at Lake Junaluska in connection with special projects of their local churches.

The Kansans, numbering 31 high school and college girls and six adults, are traveling in a chartered bus while making a two-week tour of Methodist missions and general headquarters on the church in the South and Southwest. From here the group goes to Nashville, Tenn.

The Pennsylvania group of 35 boys and girls and adult counselors made Lake Junaluska headquarters while leading a week-long Bible school at the Methodist Indian Mission church in Cherokee.

Representing Grace Methodist Church near Pittsburgh Pa. the group also help the Cherokee Methodists build an outdoor worship center on the church grounds. A holy communion service for the Indians and their visitors celebrated completion of the worship center.
