FANCY LUGGAGE looks good on an ocean liner or train, but far more practical is a German rucksack ("back sack") which carried all of Geraldine Fish's possessions on her bicycle tour through 18 European countries. Miss Fish asserts: "I'd rather lose my passport than lose my rucksack." (Mountaineer Photo.)

Clyde Girl Says Bicycling Best Way To See Europe

When it comes to traveling in Europe, most Americans tend to think in terms of luxurious ocean liners, fast airliners, cars, or trains.

But a Clyde girl just back from a stay of a year and a half abroad is convinced that the best way to see foreign countries is on a bicycle!

Despite the fact that a bicycle moves comparatively slowly and demands more energy than a lot of car-loving Americans are willing to put forth, Geraldine Fish, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Fish, traveled through 17 European countries last year and proved very effective. (See Clyde Girl—Page 8)

225 Cases On Court Docket; Will Convene Monday At 10

With the addition of 18 more cases to the docket this morning, J. B. Siler, clerk of court, said about 225 cases would face the February term of criminal court as it convenes Monday morning.

Judge J. Will Pless, Marion, will preside.

The first matter to claim the court's attention Monday morning will be the selection of nine members, and a foreman for the Grand Jury. Nine members named last July will serve again this term.

The majority of cases on the docket are termed by court officials as being of the type that will not consume much time for trial.

Among the cases on the docket is that of Forest Bryson, charged with the death of a 12-year-old girl in a car accident near Balsam.

Also Charles H. Leatherwood, charged with the death of Charles W. Gidney, of Canton, as the result of an automobile accident at Clyde in May, 1955.

On the docket is the case of Burle Warren, who was granted a new trial by the State Supreme Court. He was charged with the wounding of his son at their home in Thickety.

Future Outlook For Burley Tobacco Production, Prices Termed 'Bright'

Popularity Of 'Burley 21' On Increase

The future outlook for burley production and market prices in the U.S. is definitely bright, Roy R. Bennett, tobacco specialist from N. C. State College, told 100 Haywood County burley growers at the annual tobacco school held here Wednesday.

Mr. Bennett said that prospects are encouraging because of the fact that cigarette manufacturers are putting more burley into their cigarettes (an average of 40 per cent now as compared with 29 per cent in the past), because of the increase in the national population, and the rise in cigarette consumption.

Cuts in acreage allotments also are starting to bring supplies in line with demand, Mr. Bennett pointed out.

In regard to the latest research on burley tobacco, the specialist urged farmers to pay more attention to their tobacco beds and not to seed them too thick, using no more than a tablespoon of seed per 100 square yards of beds.

He also advised the watering of beds at germination time if the ground is dry.

Furney Todd, plant pathologist at N. C. State, advised growers to give special attention to disease control in plant beds, especially wildfire.

Control measures for wildfire in the plant bed are the same, he said, except for one new method—the use of streptomycin sulphate in dust or liquid. This chemical was used in the county in demonstrations last year and proved very effective. (See Burley—Page 5)

Haywood Ministers Set Up Chaplaincy At Hospital

The Haywood Ministerial Association has set up an interdenominational chaplaincy program for the Haywood County Hospital. The plans were set up at the monthly meeting of the organization Monday, at the Central Methodist Church, Clyde.

Rev. J. G. Goodwin, Jr., chairman of the committee, was named to head the committee to get the program under way. One member of the organization will serve as chaplain for a week at a time.

James Y. Perry, Jr., rector of Grace Episcopal church is president of the organization, and presided Monday.

J. G. Goodwin, Jr., pastor of First Baptist Church, Clyde, introduced Dr. Hugh A. Matthews, Canton physician, who spoke on the theme, "Hospital Visitation."

Dr. Matthews reviewed some of the problems of the hospital administration and staff in trying to meet the needs of the patients and maintain good public relations. He emphasized that the first consideration is always the welfare of the patient. In discussing visitation in general, Dr. Matthews made the following observations and suggestions:

"A visit will either do good or harm; regular visiting hours of the hospital should be observed; keep visits as brief as possible; visitors should refrain from smoking in the corridors and wards; and that too many visitors can be harmful to the patient."

The ministers were reminded that they could do some significant work in helping the doctors with their problems.

The role of the minister in his hospital visitation was discussed. A question and answer period followed Dr. Matthews' remarks.

There were 32 members and guests present. The next meeting will be held on March 5, at 12:00 in Clyde's Central Methodist Church.

Mrs. W. S. Roberts is general chairman.

A silver offering will be taken for the benefit of the library building fund.

The public is invited.

Vocational Guidance Clinic Advocated For Waynesville

Establishment of a vocational guidance clinic in Waynesville to assist juniors and seniors in high school has been advocated by Leo Leslie, advertising manager at the Welco Shoe Corp.

Mr. Leslie, speaking to the Waynesville Kiwanis Club, said that business and professional men of this area could volunteer their services for the vocational clinic and help students profit by their experience.

Mr. Leslie pointed out that adult speakers would not attempt to "sell" students on their own business or profession, but rather would only help young people to make up their minds by outlining information on jobs such as training and education needed, opportunities for advancement, specific problems to be encountered and future outlook for expansion.

These discussions also might include, he said, specific information on various types of employment such as management, sales, production, technical, and research, the feasibility of generalization or specification, and opportunities for employment in this area or away from here.

Emphasizes also should be laid on the proper mental attitudes to insure success in a chosen field such as (See Vocational—Page 8)

A countywide picnic and rural health conference, establishment of a county garbage disposal system and improved rural fire protection are among the major goals for 1956 adopted by the Haywood County Community Development Program.

The CDP program for this year was discussed Monday night at the courthouse at a meeting of county officers, directors, and chairmen of the individual community groups.

To make plans for the county picnic and rural health conference, a committee was named, consisting of Sherrill Jimson, Mrs. Kenneth D. Fry, and Mrs. James Medford. Dr. H. A. Matthews of Canton will act as consultant for the committee.

Committees are yet to be named to study the garbage disposal and rural fire protection problems.

At their meeting Monday night, the CDP officials also voted to:

1. ESTABLISH a safety committee in each CDP organization.
2. ENDORSE the cooperation of the CDP with Haywood County Soil Conservation District supervisors in participating in the Carolina Power and Light's "Finer (See CDP—Page 8)

Hazelwood Man Sails For Little America 'Deepfreeze'

ANTARCTICA, (Delayed) — Lawrence Conard, pipe fitter third class, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Conard, Hazelwood, and husband of the former Miss Willodene Sanders of Gideon, Mo., is serving aboard the Operation Deepfreeze icebreaker USS Edisto which sailed yesterday for Little America from the McMurdo Sound Site of the Air Operation Facility.

The crew of the Edisto have performed the multiple duties of icebreaking, cargo handling and general roustabouts while the ship cut channels through thick ice and led heavier ships through broken ice, towing them when necessary.

When it was found that the ice was too jagged for her thinner skinned sister ships, the Edisto and other icebreakers created a shuttle service, carrying supplies and equipment from cargo ships at the mouth of the Bay to the unloading site 40 miles inside the bay.

The unloading operation proved more difficult than expected when the weight of equipment, combined with freak antarctic weather conditions, threatened to break up the remaining shelf ice.

Crewmembers, working in shifts on a 24-hour basis, several times were forced to reload cargo unloaded only a few minutes before, when fierce winds swept it and the ice foundation out to sea.

When the Edisto lost a propeller in the continuous operations, she assumed new duties as an escort vessel, obtaining hydrographic data and exploring sites for future weather stations and emergency landing fields.

Jackson, Madison County Farmers See Silos Here

A group of Jackson County farmers, headed by County Agent Paul Gibson, will tour Haywood County today to inspect new silos which have been constructed here recently.

Haywood County Agent Virgil L. Holloway said that the Jackson group is especially interested in the new horizontal bunker and trench types of silos.

Another group of farmers from Madison County toured Haywood Tuesday to inspect silos, beef cattle, and sheep on county farms.

The Madison group was scheduled to be here last week, but had to cancel their plans because of the snow which fell last Monday night and prevented their crossing into Haywood from Spring Creek.

stock to contact him or any member of the Junior Chamber of Commerce before Saturday night.

North Carolina Jaycees have agreed to sell $200,000 of a total of $1,000,000 authorized by charter to raise funds for the development of new industry in the state.

More than $800,000 has already been raised by Governor Luther Hodges and his staff.

Ground Hog Emerges To Find Cold Rains

The early Ground Hog forecasters — February 2nd variety — got to stay above ground today, in a sprinkle of cold rain.

There were no shadows to scare the weather prophet back into his den. However, the cold rain was enough to make the sleepy headed fellow dart back for a warmer place than the surface of the ground afforded today.

Some Ground Hogs, according to tradition, do not check on the weather until Valentine's Day — February 14th.

Just what is the thinking of Haywood Ground Hogs is not known, because it was too cold to stand out and watch for any Ground Hog noses peeping up this morning.

Anyway, the cold drizzle made it miserable for man or Ground Hog to be outside this morning.

And as to the prospects for more winter weather — there always has been more winter after even February 14th.
