

Champion Paper Planning Chapaco Council Program

The second series of "Chapaco Council" conferences, involving the management of The Champion Paper and Fibre Co., is scheduled for the period of June 6-23 at Lake Logan, according to an announcement by the firm's president and board chairman, Reuben B. Robertson.

The conference will include management personnel not in attendance at last year's initial conference and representing the company's three divisional mills at Hamilton, Ohio; Canton, and Pasadena, Texas, and the General Office at Hamilton. The 1956 discussions will deal principally with the subject of "human relations."

Mr. Robertson points out that the forthcoming conference will be divided into five three-day sessions, enrolling some five hundred management people at the Lake Logan meeting site, and featuring speaking appearances by five nationally-known men in government, industry, education, religion and finance.

"In order to continue development and growth in an ever-expanding industry such as ours," Mr. Robertson states, "we must keep our management people well-informed, while drawing upon them for much of our forward thinking, and it is to this end that we feel very strongly the value of the 'Chapaco Council.'"

Committee Meetings Keep Senator Ervin Long Hours

WASHINGTON — Committees of which I am a member have been requiring the lion's share of my time the past several days.

LONG HOURS

I refer to the Armed Services Subcommittee on the air inquiry headed by Senator Symington and the Permanent Investigations Subcommittee headed by Senator McClellan. In addition to these committees, there have been meetings of the Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee and the Calendar Committee which acts when routine legislation is being handled on the floor. This activity, plus the normal requirement of looking after matters pertaining to the constituents of North Carolina, leaves no time for loafing or taking advantage of the normal tendency to yield to the pleasure of a doze in the sunshine.

NOT AT BAT

Some of the political battles that take place on legislation remind me of a story they told on me back home in Morganton when I was a young boy playing sandlot baseball. The team on which I was playing was getting beat terribly bad — in fact, the score was 43 to nothing. It is said that somebody asked me if we were getting beat and that I replied in the negative, basing my opinion on the assertion that our team had not been at bat yet so we couldn't be getting beat.

TECHNICALITIES

Governmental bureaucracy has been a topic of discussion since the birth of the nation. I was impressed during the recent conference in connection with hurricane damage in North Carolina with the fact that some of the government's lawyers must stay up all night trying to figure out how to complicate simplicity. I got that impression from the meeting with Secretary Weeks and his attorney on damage to the highways in our State. There was a simple technicality that the Secretary apparently knew should not stand in the way of granting certain funds. It is this type of bureaucratic stalling that takes so much time in Washington. But things usually work out in due course to the satisfaction of all concerned if the cause is legitimate.

DELEGATION

I am looking forward to the National Rivers and Harbors Congress in Washington. The North Carolina delegation under the chairmanship of Mr. E. L. White, former Mayor of Wilmington, and Mayor George W. Dill, Jr. of Morehead City, will have a dinner on the evening of May 9. Our state is vitally concerned with rivers and harbor legislation, and this is an opportunity for unified action on the needs. You will be interested in following the action of the meeting in Washington. The North Carolina delegation is made up of some of the most enlightened and interested people on problems and needs of rivers and harbors. Their contribution to the development of our State is far more important that I can detail here. These delegates deserve a vote of appreciation for their unselfish contribution.
