many unusual sights today at the famed resort of the glass bottom boats. After another night at Silver Springs tonight, the musicians will resume their trip to The Sunshine City.

At the convention, the WTHS band will be quartered at the Lago Mar hotel at Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., where facilities of the resort area will be made available to the group.

Big events at the convention for the mountain musicians will be the Lions Club parade down Biscayne Boulevard Wednesday night, the "North Carolina Night" program in the Orange Bowl Thursday night, and the inauguration Saturday of John L. Stickley of Charlotte as president of Lions International.

The band will start its return trip Saturday, spend the night at Ocala, Fla., and then return to Waynesville about 9 p.m. Sunday, July 1.

latter was pointing a 25-20 rifle at him. McCracken was standing on his own front porch; Watson was about 60 feet away in the road in front of the McCracken residence.

Deputy Howell said that McCracken has been charged with assault with a deadly weapon and inflicting serious and permanent injuries, and Watson will be cited on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

The argument between the two men was said to have started a week ago. Sheriff Fred Campbell said he was informed McCracken had accused Watson of stealing bricks from his property.

The incident was investigated by Deputies Howell and Everett McElroy.

were encouraging. In many cases the doctors said they had been able to replace or reduce the injection with the oral insulin. However, the consensus was that much research and clinical use would be required before the full value of the new form could be determined.

Although extremely cautious in predicting the full value of oral insulin, the physicians were optimistic that research and clinical use might bring about a new era for those suffering from diabetes.

In another address Dr. Robert G. Greenblatt, professor of endocrinology at the Medical College of Georgia, stressed the importance of a combination of male and female sex hormones, replacing surgery in the treatment of some women's problems.

Dr. William Hamm of Atlanta, past president of the American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery, gave an illustrated lecture on repairs of defects of the face following removal of cancer.

Dr. Kinloch Nelson, professor of Clinical medicine at the College of Virginia in Richmond, discussed irregularities of the heart beat. He said that often skipping of the heart is functional, and not always indicative of any organic disease.

He told the group that while many new medicines have been found for treatment of irregularities of the heart, two "old stand-by" medicines still rank highest. He said digitalis is one of the most valuable for treating heart irregularities, and another is quinidine. Both have had widespread use for many years — digitalis dating back for hundreds of years.

The specialist also discussed the new electric type cardiogram machines, which "write" the heart beat of the patient directly on a paper tape. This saves considerable time over the older type where a film was used, and the saving of time is in many instances favorable to the patient in time of emergencies.

In the first session, Dr. Park Niceley, urologist of Acuff Clinic, Knoxville, Tenn., pointed out that diseases and ailments of the urinary tract produce symptoms that are frequently mistaken for those related to the muscles, back and intestinal tract. He said that in the practice of urology, as in all of the other phases of medicine, a detailed and careful history and physical examination is most important and frequently will permit an early diagnosis and prompt treatment.

About 10 minutes later, Martin said, the signal was given by life guards to clear the pool because of an approaching electrical storm.

Teresa's body was found in 3 1/2 to 4 feet of water as the pool was being cleared.

Sherry Hollifield told Martin she turned around to find Teresa and did not see her.

The body was brought from the pool by Richard Beauchamp, one of four American Red Cross senior life guards on duty at the time. The guards, led by Martin, a Red Cross water safety instructor, gave artificial respiration for 30 minutes.

A rescuistator from the Waynesville Fire Department was taken to the scene by Fireman Clem Fitzgerald and used for 15 to 20 minutes at the pool and in the ambulance as the child was taken to the Haywood County Hospital. Dr. Paul Stappenbeck and Dr. Jack Davis assisted the guards.

Martin said the child never showed any signs of life.

Dr. J. Frank Pate impaneled a jury and held inquest Saturday night after an autopsy was performed by Dr. F. S. Hindman, with Dr. V. H. Duckett, Dr. Pate, and Dr. Stappenbeck.

The Rev. James W. Fowler, Jr., superintendent of the Lake Junaluska Methodist Assembly grounds, was summoned to the scene and assisted in seeing that everything possible was done for the child.

Fowler said: "Every precaution had been taken to have a safe pool and only this week the assembly received a report from Mitchell Kirkland, Red Cross water safety director for North Carolina, who directed the lake pool one of the best operated in the state."

"Terry" was a student in the third grade at Central Elementary School, attended the Presbyterian Church, and was a member of Brownie Troop 60 of Waynesville.

Surviving, in addition to the parents, are two brothers, Joe and David Russell; the paternal grandmother, Mrs. Turner Russell; and the maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Timmons of Canton.

Arrangements were under the direction of Garrett Funeral Home.

persons dedicated themselves to work for Christ and the church. The mission offering, designated for the cooperative program, amounted to $51.10.

There were 133 enrolled with an average attendance of 100. The extra department of adults enrolled 45, with the pastor as teacher. They studied Paul's Missionary Letters.

Hong Kong Bishop Cites Christian Common Bond

Christians everywhere have a "common denominator" regardless of race or nationality. Methodist Bishop Ralph A. Ward is convinced after 47 years' service as a missionary overseas.

"God cares" is New Testament's key message for every individual. Bishop Ward said, "even though the principal task of the Christian Church is carrying the Gospel to the masses."

Bishop Ward is resident bishop of the Hong Kong episcopal area of the Methodist Church. He served in China from 1909 until the Communists came to power, and during World War II he was a prisoner of the Japanese for three years. He and Mrs. Ward are residing in Hendersonville while home on furlough.

"Communism in China and Escapes from It" will be the subject of Bishop Ward's closing lecture at 11 a. m. Wednesday at Lake Junaluska. Mrs. Ward will speak at 8 p. m. Tuesday about her missionary experiences. She and the bishop are program principals at the Southwide School of Missions for leaders of the Methodist Women's Society of Christian Service in nine states and Cuba.

The Rev. Dr. William B. Selah, pastor of Galloway Memorial Methodist Church in Jackson, Miss., will be the platform speaker in the main auditorium the rest of this week. He will bring his first message Wednesday night and speak twice daily Thursday and Friday at 11 a.m. and 8 p.m.

The second senior assembly for the Methodist Youth Fellowship of Western North Carolina opened Sunday at Shackford Hall and will run through Saturday.
