HOUSE CLEANING TIPS — There is a cleaning wax (tested by scientific research workers) that quickly cleans the following:

Wood or metal cabinets finished with enamel, paint, varnish, lacquer, etc. (Do not use on flat paint.)

Walls and woodwork — surfaces finished as above or covered with glazed brick or ceramic, metal or plastic tiles.

Baked enamel, porcelain or lacquer surfaces which include refrigerators, ranges, freezers, dishwashers, sinks, conventional and automatic washers, dryers, ironers, hot water heaters, laundry tubs, food disposal units, electric roasters and casseroles, food and drink mixers, air conditioners, plumbing fixtures, etc.

Kitchen and dinette furniture — plastic-chrome combination tables and chairs, plastic or leatherette upholstery, high chairs, serving wagons or other items finished with paint, enamel, varnish, lacquer, etc.

Chrome, stainless steel, brass, copper and wrought iron — coffee-makers, toasters, chafing dishes, faucets and sink fixtures, electric and steam irons, cabinet handles, back-splashes, trivets, exhaust canopy over stove, etc.

Work counters and sink tops — Formica and similar surfaces, linoleums, rubber, vinyl plastic, stainless steel, glazed brick, ceramic tile, etc.

Look for this cleaning wax in your local store. Read the label!

RUGS LIE FLAT

A small amount of liquid starch will give scatter rugs extra body and make them lie flat. Use it in the final rinse water when washing.

Hearty sandwiches: top buttered bread with canned baked beans and sprinkle with grated cheddar cheese. Criss-cross partially-cooked half-slices of bacon over the cheese and bake in a hot oven or broil.

A bit of ham or chicken leftover? Dice fine and add it to the filling for stuffed eggs.

Bedtime Story

NO TELLING what fibers go to make up today's fabrics. Dacron, nylon and good old cotton combine for a fabric that is cool, crisp and easy to care for. It makes up nicely into a sweet, fresh bit of slumberwear that has a sort of blithe baby look about it. It is pretty in pastels with dainty embroidery in white with not ruffling. The sleeper is very brief with matching panties and a sensible answer to keeping comfortable on warm summer nights.

Honeymoon: Is It Really Necessary?

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

If you can't afford to honeymoon, should you get married anyway . . . or wait?

That's the question that five young moderns were asked, and their answers might interest other starry-eyed maidens who are lying awake nights counting orange blossoms . . .

"My mother says that any girl is silly to give up a honeymoon and if the man can't afford one, he has no business getting married. I think she's right," says a 17-year-old high school senior who is engaged to a law student. "I have a friend who got married on a shoestring with all sorts of promises and now she is back with her family."

One blue-eyed blonde planning a September wedding explains "we are going to be married with a big reception and everything that'll cost my family quite a bit, when you figure the cost of invitations, music, food, clothes. The least my beau can do is plan a nice honeymoon for us. If he can't afford it, I think it is up to his parents to pay for it. After all, my parents are mortgaging the house to give us a nice wedding. I think his parents should contribute more than their presence."

That point of view seems to predominate with this year's crop of engaged belles, although some girls on the love . . . love . . . love cloud do not agree. One college freshman had this to say:

"My husband-to-be began saving for our wedding about two years ago. We want to continue to build up the savings the first year we are married when we'll both be working. Next summer we'll go on a belated honeymoon. We'll use the money we have now to feather

Sliced cucumbers, black olives and canned pimientos make a delicious and attractive first course. Serve with crusts of olive oil and wine vinegar, salt and freshly-ground pepper, French or Italian bread, or crusty rolls to accompany this of course.

Whip a cup of cream and fold in two tablespoons of sugar and one-quarter cup of undiluted frozen tangerine juice. Serve as a topping for apple pie.

our nest so we'll have a good start."

Another love-in-bloom type offered this tid-bit . . .

"You can say anything you like, but if two people love each other the wedding reception and honeymoon do not make too much difference. A girl who wants to delay her wedding because her husband-to-be can't afford a honeymoon, shouldn't marry because she is not really in love. It would be different if he has no job or future. But if he has the cash to start, and steady employment, she ought to be willing to get married and wait until she can afford her honeymoon before she goes on it."

Sometimes it's Dad who tries to find a solution to the no-money-for-the-honeymoon dilemma. In that case he might be a little too practical, as in the case of 18-year-old-Cathy's father.

"Dad's really wonderful," she says, "and he tried to find a solution for us so we could have a honeymoon. He finally suggested that if we'd elope, he'd give us all the money that he'd save on the wedding. That idea doesn't pan out because I'd rather have a church wedding than a honeymoon. I think I'll remember the wedding for a long time and we will not be able to do it later on if we skip it now as we can do with the honeymoon."

A girl never knows what she'll do in a situation like this until the right man comes along. If she is adamant on the honeymoon-is-the-right-of-the-bride-theme however, she'll probably scare away potential suitors, and never face the issue anyway.

Canton Garden Club Hears Mrs. Bottoms

The Canton Garden Club met Tuesday for a luncheon meeting in the home of Mrs. Willis Kirkpatrick on School Street, Mrs. Roy H. Moore was associate hostess.

Mrs. A. W. Bottoms discussed "Basic Equipment For Flower Arrangements," and Mrs. James B. Hurley conducted a demonstration on asymmetrical triangle arrangements.

Asymmetrical arrangements were judged, and ribbons were won as follows: Mrs. Clyde R. Hoey, blue; Mrs. Hurley, red; Mrs. J. Frank Pate, yellow; and Mrs. Hugh Keener was given honorable mention.

Luncheon was served by the hostess following the meeting. Arrangements of white garden flowers were used in the living and dining rooms.
