Clyde High School students in connection with the theft of money from a soft drink machine.

Leading the docket in the number of cases this term are charges of speeding. Other cases involve charges of reckless driving, drunk driving, speeding, possession and transporting non tax-paid liquor; leaving the scene of an accident, failure to report an accident, improper muffler, driving without an operator's license, driving after revocation of license, hit and run, auto theft, receiving stolen property, non-support, abandonment, breaking and entering, larceny, trespassing, slander, assault with a deadly weapon, vagrancy, adultery, seduction, operating a disorderly house, and crime against nature.

Perhaps the most unusual case on the docket are charges of "larceny of fish" against two men, who are accused of stealing fish from the state trout hatchery.

The jury panel for the July term of court includes:

within the next two weeks, and most county dairy farmers are expected to have the units operating in the next several months.

On their Valley View Dairy Farm on the Lovejoy Road, the Ducketts have 88 acres, a herd of 24 dairy cows and 20 head of beef cattle. In the dairy business for eight years, they are now milking 21 cows and selling an average of 550 pounds of milk daily.

To feed their livestock, the Ducketts fill two cement silos and four temporary silos with corn ensilage each year. The farm raises a crop of burley tobacco annually.

Persons interested in seeing the new bulk milk tank are invited by the Ducketts to visit their farm.

This Lady Has a Way With Horses

BEAT THE RACES by breeding good horses is the formula used by Miss Mildred Woolwine, shown above with War Flower, 18-year-old broodmare who has produced foals worth $250,000.

By BILL HUDSON

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Mildred Woolwine's formula for how-to-beat-the-races is as easy as ABC—she sends her horses to market and leaves the racing to new owners.

The only time she raced the "bottom had dropped out of the yearling market."

The measuring stick that's applied to her venture in thoroughbred breeding is dotted with success. Her comparatively small White Oaks Farm has produced turf stars Sea O Erin and Helioscope. Two yearlings brought her $60,000 apiece at the Keeneland auction last summer. And, War Flower, a mare purchased in a dispersal, has returned her investment tenfold.

The thoroughbred industry buzzed over the shrewd purchase by Miss Woolwine and associates of 40 broodmares and weanlings from the William Woodward Jr. estate for $410,000.

Three weeks later, the lot was auctioned, save for one aged mare, for a fabulous $924,100.

Miss Woolwine purchased a farm and two mares in 1940 at Nashville, Tenn. She moved to Kentucky nine years later. Her 257-acre nursery near Lexington once was part of Col. E. R. Bradley's Idle Hour Farm.

"My first yearlings sold in 1941," says Miss Woolwine, "and in 1942 the bottom dropped out. I raced four colts only until the market picked up."

Her enthusiasm bubbles over War Flower, purchased in 1944 from Samuel D. Riddle for $22,500. War Flower was six and in foal to Helioscope.

"I just knew that was a great mare," she says.

"In Nashville, I was severely criticized for my judgment. But in 1946, I sold the foal (Ace Admiral) for $30,000.

"I've sold over $250,000 worth

Pity The Taxpayer

ROANOKE, Va. (AP)—A 9-year-old boy committed to the Roanoke Juvenile Detention Home couldn't understand why he was given two bed sheets. He regarded one as acceptable, two as extravagant.

"Who pays for this?" he wanted to know.

"The taxpayers," he was told. "A top sheet is a waste of the taxpayers' money," the youth insisted.

Quick supper: a can of tomato spaghetti sauce (meatless) with mushrooms served over cooked rice and sliced hard-cooked eggs.

New idea for stew: sprinkle beef cubes with chopped onion, crushed garlic and oregano the night before you plan to cook it; cover tightly and refrigerate. Next day brown the meat and onions in fat and proceed as usual.

Middendorf of Boston and Mrs. Middendorf entered in the deal later.

The weanlings sold for "what we valued them," explains Miss Woolwine. The mares sold much higher because "we had a broodmare audience and not a racing audience."

She sold the horses immediately because "if we had kept them, there'd be 23 seasons to get for those mares and there'd be all that gamble. We decided to sell while we could get that million dollars worth of advertising."

Security cards.

The boy identified himself as Alvin Crawley of Gary, Indiana, but Cpl. Smith said he doubted that is his real name.

The corporal related the arrest of the youth this way:

The theft of the car occurred at Franklin about 8 p.m. and was reported to the Highway Patrol over the radio. Cpl. Smith and Sheriff Campbell first went to Balsam and started back east when they spotted the stolen car on the Saunook road and followed it back to a point near the Dayton Rubber warehouse.

A check of the car disclosed that the ignition had been "straight wired" with a bobby pin. Asked for his driver's license, the boy produced one issued to a Florida man. Asked for the car's registration, the boy offered a birth certificate. Finally, after further questioning, he admitted stealing the car at Franklin. He also confessed to stealing another car at Macon, Ga., but said he abandoned the vehicle in the same city.

The officers said that the boy had no money in his possession when apprehended.

He will be held in Haywood County jail until an investigation has been completed into his identity and possible other charges against him.

Damage was estimated at $50 to Dills car and at $25 to Mrs. Mann's car.

The other accident took place in Waynesville when Charles Edward Long of Cherokee, driving a 1939 Chevrolet, struck a parked car, a 1956 Buick, owned by J. R. Boyd, Jr., on Commerce St.

Damage to Long's car was put at $150 and to Boyd's car at $100.

Large crowds were reported both on the Waynesville High School grounds where the Hazelwood Boosters Club is sponsoring rides and other events all this week, and at Lake Junaluska where swimming and field events were held during the day and a concert and fireworks were presented at night. The Hazelwood celebration also included a display of fireworks.

The rides at WTHS will continue in operation through this Saturday night.
