Fugitives Taken After Killing Of Deer In Pisgah

Two escapees from Craggy Prison Camp near Asheville were captured last week in the East Fork section of Pisgah National Forest after they allegedly killed a deer out of season.

Two other men, not escapees, also were arrested. The four men are from Haywood County.

Officers identified the escapees as Edward Reece, about 28, and Lewis Grooms, 24. Both were serving 90-day sentences when they escaped July 6.

Also arrested were Virgil Harvey Reece, about 21, and Kenneth Browning, about 65.

The group was together in the forest when the arrests were made by Game Protectors E. J. Owens, J. D. Perkins, Lloyd Higgins and Clyde Huntsinger.

Edward Reece also was charged with resisting arrest and assault on an officer.

The two escapees were working at a rock quarry at Weaverville when they made their break for freedom. It was reported by prison officials.

New York City had 1,052,000 people over 65 years old compared to 176,230 in 1920.

July Fourth Biggest Yet, Boosters Say

The Fourth of July celebration sponsored by the Hazelwood Boosters was "the best success of any yet," according to Boosters President Lawrence Davis. The club heard the report at its meeting Thursday night.

The series of events cleared a larger sum of money than any previous celebration, he said, although exact figures would not be available for several weeks.

It is expected that the profits will enable the club to complete the payments on the lot recently acquired by the club to build a community house.

The project is part of the town's "Finer Carolina" program, Davis said.
