Referendum Set Friday, July 20 On Wheat Controls

A wheat marketing referendum on whether producers favor continuation or abandonmet of controis will be held in North Carolina by the ASC Friday, July 20, it has been announced.

In Haywood County, eligible farmers can vote at the ASC office at the courthouse.

To vote in the referendum, according to A. W. Ferguson, ASC manager, a farmer must plan to plant 15 or more acres of wheat in tween the four-year conferences. Dr. Gerald O. McCulloh of Nashville, Tenn., in reviewing the church's ministerial supply, cited a need for 1,600 more ministers during the coming four years.

The conference began Wednesday. Threatening to slow down progress was the matter of filling the two vacancies on the College of Bishops but the fourth ballot named one new bishop and the other was determined on the eighth ballot Racial matters, too, popped up during the session. The College of Bishops endorsed the church's stand on race leaving integration decisions up to local units but making possible the union if desired. Two visiting Negro bishops issued pleas for better understanding between the races to avert "emergency" situations.

Four From Haywood At Farm Bureau School

Sixty-three North Carolina Farm Bureau leaders were among the more than 400 delegates attending a regional training school in Asheville this week for thirteen southern states and Puerto Rico.

Attenling the four-day session from Waynesville were Mrs. Raymond Caldwell, Mr. and Mrs. Oral Yates and Miss Frances Yates.

The training school, an annual midsummer event that was held last year in New Orleans, was designed to familiarize delegates with techniques in organizational meth-
