'WATERFALL' STOPS THE SUBWAY

TORRENTS OF WATER cascade over the platform onto the tracks of the BMT station at Eighth Street in New York, halting service. The water poured out of basements of the old Wanamaker building, where firemen had been battling a stubborn blaze. The adjoining IRT subway system was also knocked out when a ceiling collapsed. Authorities said repairs would take "at least a month." More than 250,000 riders pass through the stations daily. (International)

OUR SOIL ★ OUR STRENGTH

Proper Water Management Prevents 'Drowned' Tobacco

By ROY BECK
Soil Conservation Service

With all the rains we have been having recently, many farmers in the county have drowned tobacco showing in their fields. From the fields I have examined, I think about half the damage could be prevented by proper water management. The other half will require field drain tile to correct the problem.

Tobacco just can't stand wet feet. When free water in the soil forces all the air from the land up to the roots, the tobacco roots die. When a farmer sets tobacco on land that is naturally wet, and has not been drained by open ditches or field drain tile, his best bet is to plant and grow the tobacco crop on a ridge. The ridge farming is handled just like it is done for sweet potatoes.

If tobacco is set on a ridge, then row arrangement becomes very important. Each row must have a grade of 6 inches to 18 inches per hundred feet to the end of the row. Otherwise, water would stand in pockets where the row grade either rose or was perfectly level.

Haywood County farmers can get help in laying off ridge rows for tobacco from their Soil Conservation District by asking their Soil Supervisors for assistance. Van C. Wells of Pigeon Community, D. J. Boyd of Jonathan Creek, and Joe S. Davis of White Oak are the soil supervisors to be contacted.

Fred L. Safford of Crabtree has done a nice job of sloping and seeding grass on the highway cut bank by his home on the Rush Fork
