

A/3C ARNOLD FERGUSON of Waynesville shakes hands with Major Lyle Jewell, president of the Wurtsmith AFB Aero Club, after Ferguson became the first club member with no previous experience to solo the single engine light plane. Between them is CAA flight instructor Frank Helman. Ferguson soloed after only three weeks of training by the base Aero Club. The club is open to all base personnel at the northeastern Michigan installation near Oscoda, 200 miles north of Detroit. The son of Mrs. Violet Ferguson of Route 1, Ferguson works at the base Motor Vehicle Supply and has been there since April 15, 1956. He entered the Air Force December 1, 1955.

NEW BOOKS FOR YOUR READING PLEASURE
Manton

"Story of Albert Schweitzer." This book tells how Albert Schweitzer was all three, musician, theologian, and philosopher — but having won wide recognition in these fields, he was still hunting for his true path in life and when he found it, decided to study medicine and to be of some use in Africa.

Giles

"Hannah Fowler." A novel of Hannah Moore, a young woman whose father had died while they were on their way to the Kentucky wilderness with a party of settlers. She married Tice Fowler sometime after her arrival there. This is the story of that marriage and of how Hannah and Tice withstood such vicissitudes of pioneer life as a blizzard, attacks of hungry wolves and Hanah's capture in an Indian raid.

Garrison

"Why You Say It." A book filled with anecdotes about words and phrases in every day use.

Robbins

"Maude Adams." A biography of the actress who reached the zenith of her career in the role of "Peter Pan." This is her story from her stage debut at the age of nine months up through the early touring days, to the years of fame and success under the management of Charles Frohman.

Sandoz

"Miss Morissa." In this novel of romance and frontier life you will read how young Dr. Morissa Kirk hangs up her shingle on the gold rush trail into the Black Hills and, through blizzard and drought, Indian uprising and typhus epidemic, carves an enduring place for herself.

Shaw

"Lucy Crown." The life history of a woman in pursuit of love. The moment in time which is decisive for Lucy Crown and which irrevocably changes the entire pattern of her own, her husband's and her son's lives arise when, on a summer holiday, unexpectedly and almost she finds herself involved with a man much younger than herself.

Scott

"Look of the Eagle." Steve Dallas was passionately dedicated to flying even though his rights were wrecking havoc on his marriage. Three of his friends felt the same way, and when the four of them keep a promise to return to an Okinawa graveyard ten years after the war, fate joins them in the adventure.

Highlands Hillbillies Brace Selves For Fancy Shindig

There's a festive fever rising in Highlands as it braces itself for the fifth annual onslaught of "Hillbilly Day" Wednesday.

"Long about sunup" on "that dreaded day," the town will roll out the red carpet to the goddamndest assortment of "human beans" assembled this side of Al Capp's Lower Slobbovia.

In its purest form, "Hillbilly Day" is an outlandish and hilarious take-off on Hollywood's version of the "typical hillbilly." In the past four years the celebration has even out-hillbilled the hillbilly and the mountain shindig is a full-blown institution that draws thousands of participants from Maine to Florida. Under threat of hillbilly justice, any "critter" caught inside the town limits during the day not dressed in "Hillbilly high fashion" pays a stiff fine and spends a few uneasy minutes in a "stockade" that bears more than a faint resemblance to an outhouse.

The annual "Parade of Hillbillies" will kick off the mountain madness at 10 in the morning, during which a secret panel of judges will "eyeball" the crowd for the two best hillbillies, male and female. These two regal "renegades" will reign over "Hillbilly Day" festivities and will be officially crowned "County Squire" and "Highlands Belle" at a real stomp-down "carnation bowl" that night.

The entire afternoon has been cleared to make way for a new "Hillbilly Day" feature.

Beginning at 1 o'clock, more than 30 bands from 15 states will start crossing harmony in a real old time string band contest. Most of them are members of the Jimmy Rogers Society of Country Music.

Between the main features of the celebration will be sandwiched a wide variety of good ol' mountain contests, ranging from hog calling to beauty contests ("fer houn's on-ly, machurally") and a greasy pole.

A noon-time feature will be a barbecue dinner with the proceeds earmarked to help defray expenses of the celebration.

Capping off the festivities officially (unofficially) it's reported that some are still celebrating last year's will be a free street dance at 8 o'clock and the "carnation bowl" of the royal hillbillies.

To the public, the "Hillbilly Day" planners, headed by Richard Thompson, extend this invitation: "Yawl cum. Effen yawl ain't plumb tuckered out by roostin' time, don't cuss us 'cause it's all free for nothin'."

Recreation Fund Pledges Come Due Next Saturday

All pledges to the Waynesville Recreation Fund are due by Saturday, August 4, it has been announced by the Recreation Commission.

Money pledge is urgently needed to pay for the first project at the recreation center, a swimming pool, which is now under construction here.

Joe Davis, cashier at the First National Bank and acting treasurer of the recreation fund, disclosed that approximately $20,000 has already been paid on pledges, and more than $30,000 remains to be paid.

Mr. Davis explained that the Recreation Commission has no funds available to send out statements, and urged that all persons who made pledges pay them by August 4th.

He added that the payments should be made to him at the First National Bank.

Safety Check May Lead To Car Inspection Program

RALEIGH—Prospects for a revived auto inspection program for North Carolina seemed bright this week as Motor Vehicles Department officials examined the results of last May's volunteer safety-check project.

Some half-million vehicles were inspected during the month-long campaign conducted in 90 Tar Heel communities, including the whole of Haywood County.

Officials were optimistic. "We feel confident," said Commissioner Ed Scheidt, "that North Carolina vehicle owners are sold on the necessity of good car care as evidenced by their support of the voluntary safety-check." Commissioner Scheidt was coordinator for the project in North Carolina.

Three national awards went to the state he said. Craven county, under the general chairmanship of James A. Stutts of New Bern, was judged to have conducted the "most outstanding county program" in the nation. And Gastonia received similar honors for the "most outstanding city program."

Gates county received a "National Award of Excellence" for the top county program in its population class.

For the Craven inspection program, this year's grand award was a repeat honor. Craven county was also awarded national recognition for its program last year.

Nationally more than 800 cities and 95 counties participated in the 1956 safety-check program. Sponsored by the Inter-Industry Highway Safety Committee, LOOK Magazine and the National Safety Council, the awards were based on "effective promotional and co-operative efforts with consideration given for the total number of vehicles checked in relation to the total community potential."

He said that legislative recommendations for an official statewide inspection program would be more effective with the solid backing of all Tar Heel car and truck owners.

School Gift

OSCEOLA, Neb. (AP)—Last September Dr. Charles W. Jeffrey, Rawlins, Wyo., physician and a native of Osceola, bought $200,000 worth of bonds sold to finance a new school here. When Dr. Jeffrey returned to attend a high school alumni banquet he announced he will cancel the last 14 years of the bond issue, a move that amounts to a $140,000 gift to the school district.

Church Music Training School Opens Tuesday

The annual Leadership Training School and Institute of Church Music will open Tuesday at Lake Junaluska as highlights of this week's program at the Methodist summer assembly.

The leadership school, expected to attract more than 400 church workers in Christian education, will be directed by the Rev. M. Earl Cunningham of Nashville, Tenn. He is a staff member of the Methodist Board of Education.

He said the school will be divided into two terms, the first running through August 4 and the second, August 6-10. The daily program will include workshops, study groups, seminars and a special laboratory for student-teachers supervised by Miss Carrie Lou Goddard of Seairrill College, Nashville.

The music institute, one of the fastest-growing projects at Lake Junaluska, will be directed by Prof. Austin C. Lovelace of Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Ill.; Prof. J. Edward Moyer of the Westminster, Md., Theological Seminary; the Rev. Walter Towner of the Methodist Board of Education, Nashville; and Glenn Draper, music director at Lake Junaluska. More than 100 choir directors and other church musicians are expected to enroll.

A third meeting opening Monday will be the annual institute for house-parents and directors of Methodist children's homes and homes for the aged.

Rat Rebellion

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—A Michigan State University psychologist has concluded that, even as you and I, rats rebel against boredom.

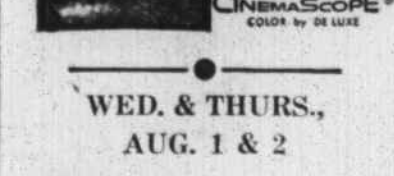

In a study of basic learning processes, Dr. M. Ray Denny, associate professor of psychology, placed food in two arms of a T-shaped runway. If fed more often in one arm of the runway, the rats high-tailed it to the other runway, although the food was the same in both places.
