Chamber Of Commerce Day Often Hectic; Never Dull

There's nothing typical about a morning in the office of the Waynesville-Hazelwood-Lake Junaluska Chamber of Commerce. The only sure thing about it is that it's never dull.

There are always people asking questions—in person, over the telephone, by letter—but their questions vary from "Where's a good place for us to stay?" to "How many detours are there between Asheville and Lily, Ky.?"

During the winter months, personnel at the Chamber devote their time chiefly to the all-around promotion of the area, with special emphasis on industrial prospects, as well as preparation of material to be used in service to tourists. During the summer, however, visitors drop in as thickly as 17-year locusts. They want to know the best way to get from somewhere to somewhere else, where

8 p.m., and are open to both junior and senior groups; from 12 to 16 years of age for the juniors, and seniors above 16. All applicants should be strong swimmers. Those interested in enrolling for this course may register at the swimming pool.

can they fish, where's a golf course, what is the best night for "Unto These Hills."

One recent morning a woman came in asking for a folder of places to stay in Waynesville. The longer she pored over it, the more her forehead creased. The staff hovered about, ready with further information. Then she explained. Several years ago she had stayed with "such nice people." Now she had forgotten their name, and she wanted to call on them even though she was staying elsewhere. A search of the names of the various lodging places failed to refresh her memory, but from her description of the house and its location, staff personnel were able to identify her erstwhile landlady.

While she was puzzling over her folder, a man came in to ask help in planning a drive along the Pigeon River and where was a good place to eat. That one was easy.

Somebody else wanted to know how to drive to New York without using the Blue Ridge Parkway—they'd had their fill of mountain driving.

The phone rang busily all the while; reservations for the Cherokee drama, plans for a horse show, a report of a door-to-door salesman claiming to represent the Chamber.

A girl came in hoping to locate a friend from home—the friend always stayed at some farm—she couldn't recall the name. A few phone calls settled that. The friend was due to arrive in a few days at one of the farm resorts.

Keeping up with a volume of mail despite the steady flow of visitors is a big job, but one that must be done at the Chamber of Commerce. Most people want general information on where to stay, information at hand in the vacation booklet and the accommodation list. A personal note, however, is frequently necessary.

People want to know how to find summer employment in the area; all about the Methodist Assembly; how far are you from the Smokies; please deliver the enclosed form to the chiropractor who treated me last summer—don't remember his name; how can I get in touch with the lady I stayed with last year in a big white house with a lovely garden; where can I order some Haywood County apples; what chain groceries do you have—and this one: "Would you kindly give me the names of the pet shops in (Continued on Page 6) extinguisher may be obtained for almost any home and farm need, he said.

Singers, Dancers Sought For Canton Holiday Program

Robinson said much property loss and personal physical damage, even death, could be avoided if an inexpensive fire extinguisher is on hand.

"The important thing now," he says, "is that farm folk avail themselves of a fire extinguisher and learn how to use it before the need arises."

Dartmouth's Lou Rovero gained 108 yards against Harvard and 124 against Cornell in Ivy League games last season. He's a left half-back.
