

Local Honor Scout To Take Part In Raleigh Ceremony

Honor Scout from each of the North Carolina councils will participate in a special ceremony in the Governor's office at the State Capitol in Raleigh about September 30.

Plans are under way to select a representative from the Daniel Boone Council. Each troop or explorer unit in the council will select an Honor Scout on the basis of personal achievement and a statement of 25 words or less, "What Scouting Means To Me." The Honor Scout from each troop or unit will be judged at a District level to determine the District Honor Scout. District winners will be judged at the Council level to determine the Council Honor Scout.

The troop or unit Honor Scout will be selected by August 25. District winners will be selected by September 8, and the Council Honor Scout will be selected September 18. Each will be presented a certificate of recognition as a Honor Scout, take part in a statewide television and radio program, and will be the guest of Governor Hodges at a dinner in the Governor's Mansion.

Jonathan's TV Talent Runs In Winters Family

When the new Jonathan Winters Show opens on NBC television on October 9, it's certain to have at least two viewers. Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Winters, Waynesville part-time residents, say that since they see their son only about once in two years, they have to keep track of him via television. "Except for those noises, which are definitely his own invention," says the senior Mr. Winters. "We think Johnny's gift for mimicry comes straight from his grandfather."

"My father was great at imitating people's ways of speaking, so much so that he made a good many enemies. We nearly got into trouble at his bank—he was president and I was cashier—because we'd get together and take off some of the characters that came in. Sometimes I'd phone him and use the voice of one of our fussy customers. He'd know who I was, of course, and come back with all the things he'd have liked to say to the man but didn't dare. That was a lot of fun—until the time the caller actually was the soured customer!"

On one occasion Waynesville's Mr. Winters called Johnny long-distance using an ultra-British accent. He kept him guessing as to what on earth his dignified foreign caller could want until he decided the toll would outrun his pocket-book.

Johnny found himself as a "ham," his father says, while he was in the Marines aboard the carrier, "Bonhomme Richard." "Between Kamikaze strikes," says Mr. Winters, "they had him announce fights over the ship's public address system. He started hamming it up and when he got out of service he knew he'd found his career."

After winning an amateur night contest in a theater in Dayton, Ohio, he got a job on a Dayton radio station. His show, "Winters' Wonderland," got him an offer from a Columbus, Ohio, television station.

ESC Cracks Down On Claim Cheats

RALEIGH — It's just like ramming your head against a brick wall, or shoveling sand against the tide.

That's the conclusion reached by those unfortunate few who try to beat the Employment Security Commission out of benefit payments when they're not eligible for unemployment, insurance checks.

The Commission has a specially-trained watchdog crew that puts the skids under any person with fraud in mind.

This fraud detection and prevention unit brought 1,558 cheaters to grief last year alone. When convicted of fraud, a person is subject to a fine of $20-$50, or 30 days in jail. Further, the courts may order that the Commission be repaid or the Commission deducts the overpayments from any future benefits to that person.

The law provides that an individual convicted of fraud shall not be entitled to receive benefits for one year beginning with the first day of any benefit week in which fraud is proved.

'Finer Carolina' Progress Reported

Hazelwood's and Canton's progress in their "Finer Carolina" projects is chronicled in a recent issue of FINER CAROLINA REPORT, published by Carolina Power & Light Company.

Canton gives a word picture of Clean-up Week with businesses, homes and grounds all receiving attention. Plans are also described for Canton's Youth Center, the planting of dogwood around the new junior high school and "fixing up one sore spot a year." Sidney Watts is listed as general chairman and Wayne Harris as publicity chairman.

Hazelwood describes the Lions Club purchase of uniforms for the Junior League baseball team, the Bonsters Club 4th of July fund-raising for a community house, the Bonsterettes' assistance in the Clean-Up, Paint-Up, Fix-Up drive, and plans to erect a light pole on the Little League ball field. Lawrence IV, sent him to New York in search of bigger opportunities. After the usual struggle for a foothold, he found spots on such shows as Arthur Godfrey's, Steve Allen's and Gary Moore's. He appeared 27 times with Moore.

Finally he has achieved a show of his own and is now very much occupied with a team of writers, one from Hollywood and one from New York, in whipping his material into shape for his October opening.

Since his son has attained national fame, Mr. Winters sometimes finds himself in an embarrassing position. He tells us that on one of his trips between Waynesville and Ohio he stopped in Linville for a golf game. As the course was crowded, he played with a young doctor and his wife. The couple introduced themselves, but on hearing that their opponent was "Jonathan Winters," the doctor glared. He knew better; he was a regular viewer of Jonathan Winters' performances. Not until Mrs. Winters convinced the doctor's wife that her husband had just as good a right to the name as did his well known son would the doctor so much as exchange a word with the "imposter."

Mr. Winters modestly hopes that Johnny will become famous some day. "He's got that gift of mimicry that runs in the family," he explains. "One evening I was watching television while Johnny was on. A lady who was a stranger to me said, 'Doesn't he have a wonderful Southern accent? He just must have been born in the Deep South.'"

"Yes, ma'am," I told her, "Southern Ohio, that is."

GOOD NEWS was received by Rev. and Mrs. Parke Renshaw, left and center, as they attended the Town and Country Conference at the Lake over the weekend, and a special session at Elizabeth Chapel, where this picture was made. The two are missionaries to Brazil, and home on their first furlough in five years, were told a rural missionary center would be established for them. On the right is Rev. Grady Barringer, pastor of the church, who explained several successful projects carried on by the congregation. (Mountaineer Photo.)

Poetry For Golf

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—Not wishing to arouse the ire of golfers nor dictate fashion to them, Dayton City Welfare Director Alfred P. Strozdas turned to poetry instead.

Now, at the first tees of three city-owned courses, signs read:

"We don't mean to preach.
"This isn't the beach.
"Will you kindly wear golfing attire?"
"Shorts to your knees and full tops please.
"It's the costume we most admire."
