Dance Dress

By VERA WINSTON

STRIPED cotton makes a delightful dress nicely attuned to summer dances and vacation festivities. Rose pin stripes run horizontally on the box-pleated skirt and diagonally on the bodice front, while in back the stripes are vertical. Rose colored velvet ribbon is used for the shoulder straps and for the pretty streamer bow that provides the back interest so important this season.

All-Weather School Coats Easy To Make With Felt

By DOROTHY ROE, Associated Press Women's Editor

AN ALL-WEATHER COAT is a back-to-school must. According to today's fashion-minded school girls, versatility is an important factor in their fall wardrobes, and each garment must serve a variety of purposes.

A prize example of such double-duty practicality is a reversible coat, peacock felt on one side and red paisley cotton print on the other, which can sail gaily through any occasion from a football game to the junior prom. In addition, it's easy to have it waterproofed for protection against rain.

Local sewing center experts suggest you make it yourself, using one of the new easy-to-sew patterns. They chose a design slightly flared to go over suits or full skirts. It has an attached hood, a button tab closing and perky slash-ed cuffs.

Made in felt, it offers no trouble to even an amateur home seamstress. Felt is available in a wide range of wonderful colors, and may be cut in any direction. The fabric requirement for a size 14 coat is 2 5/8 yards.

For easy pattern alterations, use the inch-rules printed right on the pattern pieces.

The finished coat may be waterproofed at home with a new spray, or your dry-cleaner can make it resistant to showers.

For extra protection and a gay ensemble touch, the pattern includes directions for making an umbrella. Get a little extra of the printed lining fabric and cover the frame of an old umbrella. Spray the waterproofing solution on the umbrella or hand it over to your cleaner for a professional job.

RAIN-OR-SHINE COAT . . . Easy for the young seamstress to make at home in peacock felt on one side, red cotton print on the other. Umbrella to match.
