MOSQUITOES BANQUETED IN SCIENTIFIC TESTS

MAJ. HERBERT C. BARNETT, who brought 8,500 mosquitoes from the Malayan jungle, feeds his charges with his own blood during experiments at Walter Reed Hospital, Washington. He is using them to study the transmission of diseases, such as dengue fever and encephalitis. Because the life span of the species is but a few days, they were rushed to the scene of the scientific tests in 61 hours. (International)

Safety Fair Draws Praise Of State Health Magazine

The Home and Farm Safety Fair last month is called "another outstanding achievement" for Haywood County in this month's "Home Safety News Notes," published by the Accident Prevention Section of the State Board of Health. The article voiced the hope that the fair, perhaps the first in the whole county, would become an annual event.

group in the area had a hand in "putting it on". There were no formal speeches, but there were many opportunities for learning about safety provided for the 250-300 visitors.

There were ten exhibits; among the exhibits were the local Lions' Club, Canton Enterprise, District Nurses' Association, home demonstration clubs, a local insurance agency, the Hospital Care Association, the N. C. State Board of Health, the N. C. Medical Society, and the local health department. Activities included a safety puppet show sponsored by the Medical Auxiliary; a fire extinguishing demonstration by the Dayton Rubber Company; a tractor safety demonstration by J. C. Ferguson of N. C. State Extension Service; blood-typing by the District Nurses' Association; and continuous film showing of farm and home safety

A revival meeting will begin at the Pigeon Baptist Church in the White Oak community on September 23 at 7:30 p.m. Conducting the films. The Haywood County Fair was an outstanding example of what can happen when all the people and agencies join hands and efforts to attack a problem. So far as anyone knows, this was the first county-wide home and farm safety fair held in North Carolina. It could easily be the first in the whole country.

Before the end of the day, people began talking about the fair next year, so it is entirely possible that a Home and Farm Safety Fair will become an annual event in Haywood County.

Teachers To Hold Meeting Friday In Asheville

Teachers from 18 western counties convene in Asheville on Friday, September 21, for the 34th annual convention of the Western District of the North Carolina Education Association.

With 1957 as the centennial year of the NCEA, 3,000 teachers, principals, supervisors, superintendents, and college faculty members are expected, for a record attendance. Dr. William H. Plemmons, president, Appalachian State Teachers College, will deliver the convention's principal address. His subject will be "Our Educational Centennial: A Backward and a Forward Look."

Holland McSwain, Western District president, Franklin, will preside over the convention.

The one-day meeting is highlighted by a general session in the auditorium of the Lee H. Edwards High School. Appearing on the general session program will be O. P. Johnson, NCEA president; Dr. Charles F. Carroll, state superintendent of Public Instruction; L. P. Miller, Western District NCEA director; Mrs. Ethel Perkins Edwards, NCEA executive secretary; Earl C. Funderburk, NEA director; Mr. Wilde; Mr. McSwain; and Dr. Plemmons.

The five divisions of the NCEA will hold meetings during the day. The five divisions are: The Classroom Teachers; the Directors of Instruction; the Principals; Higher Education; and the Superintendents.

During the afternoon 20 departments will meet to discuss professional problems pertaining to their areas of teaching and work. Each department will hold a business session.

services will be the Rev. Brown Caldwell of Greenville, S. C., formerly of Haywood County. Everyone is invited to attend the services. The Rev. P. C. Hicks is pastor.

Ratliff Cove BTU Holds Joint Meeting

MRS. GROVER FRANCIS
Community Reporter

The Barberville Baptist Training Union met with the Ratliff Cove group on Sunday night. Their pastor, the Rev. Paul Mull, brought the message.

Eugene Ford and Tommy Palmer are reported as improving at the Haywood County Hospital following an automobile wreck.

Others in the hospital are Mrs. Hugh Francis and Mrs. Ralph Jenkins, surgical patients.

Mrs. Joe Gaddy, Mrs. Kenneth Grasty and little Mark Rogers have returned home from the hospital.

The Rev. and Mrs. Ted Francis and their daughter are visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Francis. Mr. Francis will deliver the message at 11 a.m. Sunday.
