

White House History Is Reviewed

By SENATOR SAM ERVIN

WASHINGTON — Now that the campaign of the Presidency of the United States is in full swing, I am going to turn to some of the brief history of the White House.

WHITE HOUSE

History tells us that the White House was the first public building erected in the Capitol. Its cornerstone was laid October 13, 1792. Plans for the mansion were not suitable to many leaders of the day. Jefferson was among those who found the plans to elaborate, so George Washington advised the architect to reduce the plans to a more acceptable size.

It is recorded that when President John Adams and his wife, Abigail, arrived in Washington in November 1800 to become the first occupants, the White House was unfinished. Water was carried by hand from a nearby spring. There were no bathrooms. Mrs. Adams wrote: "We had not the least fence, yard, or other convenience without, and the great unfinished audience room (now the famous East Room) I made a drying room of — nor were there enough "lusters" or lamps, so candles were stuck here and there for light — neither the chief staircase nor the outer steps were completed, so the family had to enter the house by temporary wooden stairs and platform."

FURTHER EXPANSION

We know about Jefferson's interest in architecture. He speeded the work of finishing the White House when he came to office. With President Madison came the increased social activity of the White House under the leadership of Dolley Madison. She refurbished much of the mansion with fine style, but the British burned the mansion on August 24, 1814, and it was left in ruins, with only some of the walls remaining. Historians say a heavy rain came up while the standing walls were still hot which caused them to crack severely.

REBUILDING

Work of rebuilding was completed during Monroe's administration. It was ready for a big social season beginning with the New Year's reception in 1818. Funds for furniture were short, so Monroe sold to the government his own furniture to be used in the White House. That created a rash of criticism; he bought it back. When John Quincy Adams moved in, he found a lot of good furniture along with much junk. He took up the task of refurbishing the home, a task which was not completed until Jackson's administration.

RUNNING WATER

A brilliant job of providing running water for the White House was completed in 1833 when a pipe was laid from Franklin Park for this purpose. In 1859, the Po-

The Rev. Paul Grogan delivered the message Sunday morning at Fines Creek Memorial Baptist Church. Mr. Grogan is a former teacher of Fines Creek school.

William James, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. C. James of Statesville, spent the weekend with his sister, Mrs. Mark Ferguson, and her family.

Mrs. Elmer Messer with her children William, Paul and Lois, has gone to New Jersey.

Miss Lois Ferguson is having some work done on her house.

Miss Patsy Trantham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Trantham, and Bill Best were married Saturday. They left Sunday for Flint, Mich., where they will make their home.

Philip Donovan of Raleigh and Larry Link of Nashville, Tenn., students at Mars Hill college, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Tom Brummitt. Donovan is a nephew of Mr. Brummitt.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Arrington, with their daughter, Betty, visited Mrs. Arrington's sister, Mrs. Claude Clark, Sunday.

Dinner guests Sunday of Mrs. R. C. James and Mr. and Mrs. Brummitt were Mrs. James's sister, Mrs. Floyd Smathers; her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Young of Asheville; Mr. and Mrs. Jesse James and Mr. and Mrs. Walter James and their baby.

Raymond Green of Powhatan, Va., is visiting relatives on Fines Creek.

James Clark, formerly of Fines Creek and now living at Lake Junaluska, is ill.

Pine Grove Methodist Church and Belmont Baptist Church held a joint homecoming service Sunday, with the Rev. Frank Leatherwood delivering the morning message. About 150 persons attended.

In the afternoon Gordon Worley and Ballard Webb, the Parham Quartet, the Canton Quartet, the Bradshaw Trio, the Allens Creek Quartet, the Allen Trio and Patricia Messer rendered a program of music.

Attending the services were the Revs. Pete Hicks, Ham Hicks, Paul Grogan and M. B. Lee. Lunch was served on the grounds.

Ice Star Is Softball Slugger

MONTREAL (AP)—Doug Harvey hits hard on the ice and on the diamond. The star of the Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League also is the cleanup hitter for the Canadian softball team. The team has been playing in Quebec during the summer. Proceeds of the games go to charity.

tomac River was tapped for water. OTHER CHANGES The work of changing the White House has been continued from time to time. You will recall the most recent renovation which was completed in 1952. It suffers from very heavy wear. The thousands of visitors daily create a major problem of wear and tear.
