Exhibits Of Home Demonstration Booths Outstanding Review Of Work

29 Exhibits Presented At Armory

Haywood County's Home Demonstration Club Achievement Day drew the largest crowd in its six-year history as the exhibits opened Tuesday in the Waynesville armory.

The general theme, "Planned Family Living," was carried out with each of the twenty-eight clubs developing a subordinate theme.

The most outstanding attraction was the International Exhibit in which all of the clubs cooperated. The display showed flags, dolls in costume, literature, foods, jewelry, and other articles typical of foreign countries studied during the year.

Countries represented were Argentina, by Good Neighbors; Belgium, by Crabtree-Hyder Mountain-Iron Duff; Brazil, Maggie; Bolivia, Ratcliffe Cove; Canada, Fines Creek; China, McKimmon; Colombia, Happy Homemakers; Costa Rica, Waynesville Homemakers; Ecuador, Saunook; Egypt, Dellwood; El Salvador, Jonathan Creek; Greece, Cecil; Guatemala, Beaverdam; Haiti, Canton Homemakers; India, South Clyde; Indonesia, Clyde; Israel, Francis Cove; Mexico, Upper Crabtree; Nicaragua, Lake Junaluska; Norway, Morning Star; Panama, West Canton; Paraguay, Merry Homemakers; Peru, Bethel; Sweden, White Oak; Turkey, Allens Creek; Netherlands, Fairview; Venezuela, Lakeside; and Chile by Thickety.

The Haywood County Library showed a special exhibit of books and flags of the United Nations.

Another special exhibit was of scrapbooks of the clubs, showing their activities during the past year.

Booths containing the exhibits of the individual clubs were arranged in a panoramic effect and carried out the general theme beginning with "Family Planning" and continuing through "Christmas In the Home".

THE FRANCIS COVE CLUB showed the first booth, "Family Planning and Counseling". The exhibit was a room in which a family might meet together to plan its activities. A bulletin board on the wall listed the schedule of events for various members for a week, including 4-H meeting, football game, calf show, and Farm Bureau meeting.

JONATHAN CREEK with the title, "Planning and Landscaping the Homestead," showed a model farm in miniature. This included the home with yard free of power lines, barn screened from the house, rolling land in pasture, erosion control, a lake for recreation, and separate drives to the home and barn.

FAIRVIEW showed "The Living Area," with the slogan "Gone is the parlor, gone the day, when the living area was all work and no play." A living room furnished for the family's comfort as well as for beauty, included a number of copper articles made by club members.

WHITE OAK with "Lighting for the Home," showed a room for sewing and reading with lamps properly placed for sufficient lighting.

MAGGIE'S topic was "Let's Grow a Square Meal At Home," and it was carried out with an exhibit of growing plants, canned fruits and vegetables, and a table set with food for a balanced diet.

ALLENS CREEK showed Religion, Music, and Good Reading as important factors in "Family Life in the Home". The exhibit included a family altar, a small organ, and bookcase filled with good reading material.

THE WAYNESVILLE HOME-MAKERS showed "A Comfortable Sleeping Area," a bedroom with attractive accessories, well-constructed bed, comfortable reading area, and adequate closet space.

BETHEL showed "Handmade rugs for the home," an impressive display of hooked and braided rugs of various sizes, made by members of the club.

LAKESIDE CLUB showed "Refinishing Furniture" by exhibiting pieces of furniture before refinishing, during the process, and after completion, with the mate-

National Magazine Carries Six Pages On Beef Shoot

The current Sports Afield Gun Annual, a Hearst publication, carries a six page story, with 13 pictures of the Beef Shoot of muzzle-loading rifles, held each summer at Cataloochee Ranch.

The story was written by Ray Camp, a frequent visitor to the Ranch, and an Honorary Tar Heel, due for a visit later this month.

The article is titled: "Black Powder Marksmanship — The Pioneers with hairy ears killed their bars with muzzle-loaders, and they're still deadly weapons."

One picture shows a general view of the ranch; Tom Alexander shooting; five pictures of Tom Mull loading a rifle; one of Frank Rich molding bullets, another shot of Tom, Sr., Tom, Jr., and the late George Alexander; Capt. T. C. Robinson, Asheville, and two group pictures of Haywood marksmen.

Plays Together, Stays Together". The room contained children's toys, books for the family, and evidences of the mother's hand work.

JUNALUSKA with "Outdoor living for children," demonstrated a play area for health, safety, and fun with sand box, tea table, swings, and toys.

MERRY HOMEMAKERS demonstrated the "Health and Safety" precautions to be taken in the home by showing some of the more common hazards such as toys left on steps and walkways, lighted cigarettes on furniture, and medicine chests within reach of children.

WEST CANTON showed "Raffia, a craft for all ages". With a subtitle, "A new look for ordinary
