

'Ministry Of Sympathy' Is Unique Service

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—From three to four hours a day, Mrs. Louise Kniss sits at the kitchen table of her home and goes over obituary notices. Those hours have developed into a unique "ministry of sympathy" which more than 16,000 people have felt.

Mrs. Kniss sends to survivors of loved ones inspirational tracts—and with no thought but to comfort the bereaved. She does it anonymously. Her daily procedure started five years ago when the minister of Christian Missionary Alliance Church here put suggestions to his congregation on ways they might serve the Lord.

Mrs. Kniss herself knew what a comforting message could mean—she found out three years earlier when her husband died. Now, she brings that same kind of comfort to others, almost all of them total strangers.

She sends two tracts: "In Time of Sorrow," a four-page leaflet with a simple message of comfort; and "I Am the Door," a gospel tract outlining the plan of salvation.

"As I stuff each envelope, I breathe a prayer that the Lord will bless them and comfort them," she said quietly.

mail respond, sometimes with thank-you cards, frequently with notes of appreciation. One came from the family of the late Sen. Alben W. Barkley. All are forwarded to her by the church, whose address is on the envelope.

"But if I never got one single response I wouldn't care," she says. "I've never expected thanks."

The United States Department of Agriculture estimates that about one-third of all water used for irrigation is lost in conveying it to the land. Most of this loss is caused by seepage.

DMITRI SHEPILOV, Soviet Foreign Minister, is shown (left) speaking at the United Nations Security Council debate, in New York, on the Suez Canal dispute. He backed the proposal of Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi for the creation of a negotiating body to seek a peaceful settlement of the dispute, but went further by proposing that such a body be composed of the U. S., Britain, France, Russia, Egypt and India. Left to right are: Shepilov; Britain's Selwyn Lloyd; Secretary of State John Foster Dulles; U. S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and Minister Fawzi. ### Washington Women Win 'Worst-Dressed' Nomination

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—Though everybody complains about the weather—even when they come from places notably hotter—partying in the nation's capital continues briskly along with politics.

As long as Congress is in session and government big wheels stay close to town, there is no noticeable slump in the so-called "dog day" season. Only the setting is different. The free-loading and elbow-bending is done at crowded buffet tables and bars set up outdoors, even though many would prefer to linger in the air-conditioned drawing rooms which many embassies and private residences boast.

Socialites are taking advantage of the season's festivities this year more than ever. It's a chance to do a little politicking on the side, butter-up potential supporters, make new friends, before the fall campaigning begins in earnest.

For the women, it's a chance to look their prettiest in portrait-type garden party frocks and big, droopy-brimmed, flower-laden hats which returned to style this season.

Washington women, however, are getting scolded for their downtown street attire. They're being criticized for their backless dresses, shorts, see-through fabrics, sloppy hair-dos, gloveless hands, stocking-less gams!

A local fashion editor goes further. "There is no possible excuse for any woman's presence on downtown streets without a girle and a proper brassiere. This is Washington, D. C., NOT the Marshall Islands."

She goes on to remind her readers that Washington women have been scored as among America's most poorly dressed and suggests they follow the example set by women in New York and other large American cities.

Dark, tailored, un-fussy street frocks and suits of summer-weight fabrics are the rule rather than the exception in cosmopolitan areas.

Washington women complain it isn't they but the tourists who are careless about their appearance on the city's streets. They are reminded that tourists also go to New York, Chicago, Dallas and San Francisco!
