So This Is New York

By NORTH CALLAHAN

Subway jam — composed of humans, hurry and heat — is without doubt one of the wonders of the world. We have had two here recently, one when the train operators struck and another when the tracks were filled with water from the Wanamaker fire.

Europe just 40 years ago. About half our nation is now on daylight time, the other on standard. So, we're really leading a double life.

It was only a few months ago that Jerry Allison was a young art student here, unknown except to his immediate associates. He and his wife lived in a trailer in the suburbs and were anxiously awaiting their first child.

Oscar Hammerstein II is a sentimental fellow, as are most of the people on Broadway. The other day he and his associate, Richard Rogers, who have authored some of the best musical shows in history, talked to a group of us, and you'd have thought they were fond brothers instead of working partners.

Gotham Gatherings: the hobby of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles is washing and drying dishes. . . a nearby herd of dairy cows had always been milked with machines.

This week I became a member of the local Rotary club. The members remind me of a bunch of newspaper people, calling each other by their first names, kidding about loud-colored shirts or guys with spindly legs wearing shorts.

District Judging In Communities To Start Nov. 12

Final judging will get under way on November 12 to determine the winners of the 1956 Western North Carolina Rural Community Development Program.

Sixteen communities, each the winner in their county, will participate in the final judging. A total of 109 organized rural communities in 16 counties have competed this year in this community, home and farm improvement program.

Cash awards of over $2,000 will go to the communities in the area that have made the most progress.

Winners of the programs will be announced at the annual Community Awards Luncheon in the Asheville City Auditorium on Saturday, December 1.

Judges for the contest will be Miss Frances Alexander, assistant editor of the Progressive Farmer magazine, J. Lloyd Langdon of Raleigh, Executive Vice-President of the North Carolina Dairy Products Association and Horace J. Isenhower, State Director of the Farmers Home Administration.

THE FRENCH CONSULATE in Jerusalem is shown in flames after it was sacked and set afire by demonstrators protesting the arrest of five Algerian nationalist leaders.

Politics, Parties, Fund-Raising Campaigns Taking Lot Of Time In Washington

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — Politics, parties and philanthropies leave Washington's official wives little time to call their own these days.

Graciously willing to do all that is expected of women in their position, they're good-humoredly giving their all to hand-shaking, speech-making, tea-pouring and hosting rallies in their own homes.

"I just can't wait till the day when I can kick off my shoes and relax," one cabinet wife told me.

"It would be better still if I could lie abed until noon, or once get to bed before midnight. I'm just plain fagged out."

Despite all the campaign stamping for their favorite candidates and the social shindigs where their appearance is a must, the prominent lime-lighters are lending their active support to the capital's first United Givers Fund drive, the National Symphony Orchestra, the Goodwill Industries, and numerous other civic and charitable functions.

With strictly bi-partisan unity.

top women of both Republican and Democratic affiliations broke bread together at a huge luncheon to whip up enthusiasm for the UGF drive to raise money for some 132 agencies, including the Red Cross.

Among those present were the District's "Mrs. Democrat," Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, and its "Mrs. Republican," hostess Mrs. Robert Low Bacon.

Announcement that the cabinet wives were to be on hand to "pour" at an open-house tea at Washington's pilot Goodwill Rehabilitation Center, which offers extension of job and training services for the handicapped, brought out large numbers.

This was one of the few occasions when party-goers, hoping to meet the top ladies in government circles, were disappointed. Some explained that it was just a "physical impossibility" for them to get to the tea.

On June 17, 1909 a Congressional Medal was presented to Orville and Wilbur Wright, inventors of the airplane.

Connatser Attends 7-State Insurance Seminar For 3 Days

S. E. Connatser, district manager for the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company in Waynesville returned this week from Roanoke, Va., where he attended a business insurance seminar held at the Hotel Roanoke. Thirty-nine company representatives from Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio, Tennessee, North and South Carolina attended the Seminar, which began Monday, October 29 and ended Wednesday, October 31.

The three-day meeting was under the direction of W. L. Seawell, C. L. U., Superintendent of Agencies for Jefferson Standard. He was assisted by I. K. Johnson, C. L. U., Assistant Superintendent of Agencies.
