EUROPEAN MEN have it all over Americans when it comes to wearing the correct clothes for classified occasions, says Harold Neuman, U. S. sportswear manufacturer who spends much of his time globetrotting in search of new ideas for men's sweaters and swimwear designs.

"Over there they have special clothes for motoring, golf, hunting, fishing, hiking and going to the races," says he. "Here a man is likely just to wear an old pair of pants for anything that's not business or a formal affair."

Neuman believes, however, that American men slowly are becoming more fashion conscious, particularly about clothes for sports and leisure wear. This winter the favorites in sweaters for men and boys are conservative tones of Oxford gray and dark muted colors strictly in the Ivy League tradition.

Bulky wool knit sweaters with crew necks are high in popularity this season, as are the jacquard knits with Scandinavian motifs.

Most men don't have enough sweaters, says Neuman — a tipoff to the woman who is having trouble with her gift list. Every man should have a V-neck sleeveless sweater to wear with a sports coat, a husky pullover for outdoor sports, a comfortable coat sweater for lounging around the house, a turtle-neck bulky knit sweater for really rugged winter sports and an assortment of pullovers, with or without sleeves, to match or harmonize with various slacks and sports coats.

A smart Christmas idea is the matched pair of sweaters for father and son—a sure-fire hit.

DAR Chapter To Meet Friday With Mrs. Long

The Dorcas Bell Love Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will meet Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the home of Mrs. J. M. Long with Mrs. J. W. Killian as co-hostess.

Mrs. James Elwood will review the DAR Magazine.

Members are requested to bring gifts for the veterans' hospitals or cash for the veterans' Christmas Telephone Call Fund.

Mrs. Ben Collier, regent, will preside.

Sgt. Ic and Mrs. Douglas Moors and their children, Teddy and Mary, will arrive Monday from Ft. Campbell, Ky. to spend Christmas with Mrs. Moore's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. T. McCracken on Hazel Street. They will be joined here by their other son, Douglas, Jr., who is a student at State College.
