nish information to officers," the sheriff pointed out. "The main purpose is to provide a means of explaining the work of law enforcement officers, a study of the legal side of the work, and definitions of terms, and the various types of papers handled by officers in carrying out their duties," Sheriff Campbell said.

Plans are for each club to have a 30-minute study period each month during the school hours. An officer will teach the classes, and also hold a general question and answer period.

"We feel that if the boys know more about the work of law enforcement officers that they will have a different attitude towards the program of prevention of crime," Sheriff Campbell said. "That is our aim and purpose in taking on this special work."

Any boy in the 10th or 11th grade is eligible to join the club. There will not be any dues. The boy is given a membership card upon pledging to uphold the laws and remains a member just as long as his conduct shows he is interested in the program. The whole program is on a voluntary basis—nothing compulsory.

Sheriff Campbell said similar clubs were organized in Buncombe county, and had proven successful. Seth Perkinson, director in Buncombe, was here and explained to the 36 delegates, the program that is being carried on there.

Each boy is given a Junior Deputy badge to wear as long as he is a member of the organization.

When asked how the program would be financed—paying for the badges and other such items, the sheriff replied: "I guess I will—but then, I am interested in boys, and what better investment can a fellow make than in a young man?"

never gets closer to the student than the TV screen. He has no contact with the student in any event. In some instances effective work is done, and it is one method of getting instruction to the student, and is definitely a step forward, although "dehumanizing" to say the least.

One line of thought that has been presented and tried is for the standards for teachers to be lowered in order to induce more to take up the work, but that has already proven a false move, President Bird said.

"The matter is a grave problem for all concerned, and while experiments are being carried on trying to find a solution, we must face the facts, the solution to the problem is far from being simple."

Recalls Ike's Memory

STATEN ISLAND, N. Y. (AP)—Professor Willis Hinman of Wagner College here likes to talk about President Eisenhower's phenomenal memory for names.

Hinman, head of the department of Greek and Latin, served as Lutheran chaplain at Camp Colt, Gettysburg, Pa., during World War I. Eisenhower, then a major, was stationed at the same base.

"I admired him because he made a point of learning the names of every man he spoke to," recalls the professor.

Besides teaching at Wagner, Hinman serves as pastor of St. Johns Lutheran Church at Summit, N. J.

"It is the intention of this department to make an effort to increase the number of those protected by conducting clinics in the schools soon after the Christmas holidays.

"There are many who received one inoculation or even two but who have not returned for their third. It is felt necessary that three inoculations be given in order to secure adequate protection. For that reason those who received one or two inoculations and not the third, within the specified time, should have the full course of three from the present time.

"A schedule of clinics will be worked out and published and it is the hope of this department that many of those who have not been protected will take advantage of this opportunity.

"The immunizations may still be received at the Waynesville center on Wednesdays and in Canton on Tuesdays between the hours of 8 a. m. and 5 p.m.

County Health Officer Urges More Polio Immunizations

Immunizations against polio should be started now in order to obtain protection during 1957. Dr. R. K. Butler, county health officer, announced today.

Dr. Butler pointed out: "Although there is little danger of an epidemic at this time of year, cases have been reported in January. The percentage of those still unprotected against polio makes possible the outbreak of an epidemic. Immunization now should, in a large measure, eliminate the danger of any outbreak during 1957. The health officer also stated:
