FLAT ROCK FINISHED A TOURIST FOR A NORTHERN TRIP

Miss Jennie Veeve Smith, our efficient school principle, has just returned back from a long bus trip to New York and Niagara Falls and Canada for 34 days, and reports a wonderful visit. She had never been in but 2 states before this and it proved a remarkable education to her.

Miss Jennie Veeve saw the statue of liberty and went upstairs in its arms 155 feet which was built by the french who now owes us a war debt big enough to build over a million statues just like this one. She also rode across the Hudson River which was discovered by Robt. Fulton in a steamboat.

She visited Al Smith's Empire State building, but Mr Smith was not at home and she did not get to speak to him. She went to the follies and to a night club, but she did not do any drinking, so she says she bought her a wide-brim hat which sets her off very sweetly and makes her look 25 years younger.

She was thunder struck with Niagara Falls and she wondered where all the water came from that went over the top of same. The rivers ought have been up that day she was there. She went into cannady, drank some water out of a boiling spring over there for $10. She brought a Canadian $25 peace and will keep it in her memoirs of the trip.

She reports seeing some fine cows in the north. Also buildings that almost reached to the skies. She rode under the ground on a train that went 50 m. p. h. She stayed 2 hours at Mr Coney's Island and went in a washing for $35. And swam around a right smart in the Atlantic Ocean which comes right up to the houses over there.

Miss Jennie Veeve will possibly write a book covering her trip, and will make lectures at the school auditorium this fall to let the children know the wonders of our great world ansoforth. The school board let her take this trip instead of going to a summer school as required by law ever few years. We are glad to have her back in our midst.

Soil Surveys Aid Farming Programs

Data gathered in soil surveys of North Carolina is being used as a basis for the land-planning program and the AAA crop adjustment programs in this State.

Such data is essential to the preparation of sound land use programs and in making recommendations regarding crop and livestock production, said C. E. Williams, head of the agronomy department of the N. C. Agricultural Experiment Station.

With the information gathered the agronomy department has made maps showing the various soil types in the State, their location, characteristics and adaptations to different crops.

The department has also shown what varieties of the different crops are best suited to different soils and what fertilizers should be applied to give the best results. "By enabling the farmers to determine which crops are best adapted to their land," Professor Williams pointed out, "we are trying to help them secure the most profitable returns from their farming operations."

The work of surveying the State has been under way since 1902, with the experiment station, the State Department of Agriculture, and the U. S. Department of Agriculture cooperating in the project. So far, 85 per cent of the land in the State has been covered.

At present, six men are making surveys in the TVA area of Western North Carolina, where an intensive land use and conservation program is being developed. The TVA is cooperating in this work. Other surveys in eastern Carolina will be conducted later, Professor Williams said.

WEED CROP HURT By Hot Weather

Hot, dry weather has seriously damaged a large part of the flue-cured tobacco crop in North Carolina this year.

The heaviest damage has been in the middle belt and the upper part of the new belt. Some sections have lost as much as one-third of the crop.

Much of the tobacco that has been harvested in these areas is thin and light in weight, although the color is good, said E. Y. Floyd, extension tobacco specialist at State College.

Weed in the old belt has been suffering from the hot, dry spell during late July and early August and indications are that in this area the tobacco will not produce the yields which were anticipated 20 days ago.

In the border counties, where harvesting was a little further advanced, the growers were better able to take care of their crop, and they suffered less damage than growers in other sections, Floyd pointed out.

The weather this year has been about the most variable ever experienced by flue-cured tobacco growers in the State, he added.

In June the extremely hot, dry weather hurt the older tobacco a great deal, although it did not seriously affect the younger leaf. In the rainy period that followed, the young plants made rapid gains.

The wet weather in July caused about as big a change in leaf spread as ever been witnessed in this State, Floyd said, and a large growth was put out.

Had the weather been favorable during the latter part of July and the early part of August, he commented on the property will be made from the revenue brought in from such sales, Hoffman stated. The hills to the land, however, will be held by a non-profit corporation for the sole use of the forestry department at State College.

The State is cooperating with the college in providing fire protection for the timber tract. A number of fire wardens have been appointed to check any fires which may break out. They also serve as game wardens to prevent unlawful hunting or abuse of the game on the tract.

A CCC camp is now on the property, and the boys are constructing roads, building fire towers, and otherwise improving the area. Another CCC camp will be located there on October 1, Hoffman said.
