FROM THE SCRIPTURES

"Give her of the fruit of her hands: And let her works praise her in the gates." Proverbs 31:31.

GOLDEN GLEAMS

Virtuous and vicious every man must be,
Few in the extreme, but all in the degree.—Pope.

Prices are probably going up for a few years and some fortunes will be made, but most of them will be dropped when the next depression begins.

As we read what the politicians of both parties say we gradually come to the suspicion that the United States is to have two Presidents after 1936.

According to Rear Admiral William S. Sims, Retired, the Navy is all wrong. Wonder if the Admiral couldn't tell the world what's the matter with it?

The average city slicker has the idea that the farmer ought to grow cheap food for him whether the farmer makes a decent living out of the crop or not.

The nations, as we gather it, denounced war in the Kellogg pact but Japan and Italy reserved the right to defend themselves from the aggressions of China and Ethiopia.

Advertising of the right kind can do any merchant good; the trouble is that so many merchants squander their advertising money on schemes that are not truly productive.

The state of human beings can be understood when one realizes that the average man will be surprised if somebody does him a favor.

It's come to the point where a woman can't become a citizen of the United States unless she is willing to bear arms for the country.

EDITOR MAXWELL COMMENTS

Well readers after so long I am back on the job. Society has sustained a great loss in the dauntless flier Wiley Post and the peerless cowboy, philosopher and humorist, Will Rogers. Peace to their ashes, love and lasting memory in gratitude for their services.

It looks as if greed, avarice and self-seeking aggrandizement may start another world conflagration in the near future as it did in 1914. Will our politicians ad would be statesmen again be used as cats paws to pull the chestnuts out of the hot ashes for those greedy vamps and vandals of special privilege, the international bankers and munitions makers? We shall see.

Our schools will soon open. Will our buildings be properly repaired and equipped with necessary arrangements for the decent standards and sanitary conditions of living for our children. Will we have a sufficient number of busses driven by competent and responsible parties or will any old thing do? Why should our teacher load be increased when it was already too large? Our schools have suffered from lack of sufficient teachers. Will our officials whose duties require them to stay in behind the indifferent and negligent parents be on the job and see that those parents comply with the law and keep their children in school? We trust they will.

After all the great necessity to keep all our social systems functioning is money which is simply government credit and which may be stamped on paper, metal or other materials and should be issued by the government for services rendered or materials furnished by states, corporations or individuals. All this should be done by the government and that horde of vampires who are living high by speculating on the peoples money but are producing nothing, should be shaken loose from their nefarious profession and let engage in some productive work. Work might be had by all if the government would administer its own economic system as contemplated by the constitution. This would wipe out unemployment, recreate a rugged (not ragged) citizenship. It would cause bread lines and soup kitchens to disappear, would foster industry, thrift, morality, social security and would well nigh wipe out crime and would rapidly carry us forward on the up-grade. — R. G. MAXWELL.

ITALY WILL FIGHT

The latest news from Europe indicates that the effort of France and Great Britain to prevent Italy from waging aggressive warfare against Ethiopia has failed. The three-power conference adjourned with no concrete good having been accomplished, Mussolini having completely refused to be satisfied with partial military occupation and a grant of economic control over the Ethiopian country.

This means that Italy will start her soldiers marching just as soon as Mussolini thinks weather conditions will permit efficient military operations. For many months he has been gathering soldiers and supplies for the campaign which he believes will bring glory to his rule. In Ethiopia the Emperor Haile Selassie and his bare-footed soldiers are preparing to defend their independence as best they can, aided considerably by the mountainous nature of their country.

The League of Nations will meet early in September to consider what it will do about the matter. With its prestige already severely shaken by a failure to restrain Japan against China, officials of the League realize that to allow one member to wantonly attack and despoil another member marks the end of its influence. Yet the League, without an efficient military enforcing agency of its own, is powerless to take definite restraining action.

The future has possibilities, arising from Italy's invasion, which may be fruitful in changing the history of the world. In the first place should Italy become involved in a long and trying military effort, Germany may seize the occasion to make a definite move in Europe. This might precipitate another war on that continent. Of almost as much concern to the great colonial powers, France and Britain, is the possibility of Italy's action stirring up serious resentment among the colored races of their own dominions.

One possibility, somewhat alarming in its potentialities, is that Japan might seize the occasion to champion the rights of the colored races against white Italy. With a navy vastly superior to that of the Italians the Japanese would be in a position to as effectively interfere with the Italian campaign by controlling the sea East of Suez as the British could West of Suez with their Mediterranean fleet. If Japan seizes such an opportunity, how could the European nations object when they, likewise, think Italy's war is unjustified?
