

TUG O'WAR FEATURE AT WILLARD FARM, SEPT. 12th.

Among the features for entertainment to be staged at the Coastal Trade Experimental Station at Willard, N. C., on September 12th, is a tug of war. This war will be between two rural people and two urban people from each of the counties in the southeastern district of the state, making a total of twelve men on each side. They will have to pull on ropes, pulling, grunting, slipping and sliding, until the two groups, the rural or urban, are the best pillars. For this county Mayor J. E. Jarrist of Kenansville and Mr. Carlisle Williams of Wallace have been asked to represent the urban population of the county, with probably some one from Warsaw as alternate. For the rural sections Messrs. R. C. and J. H. Moore of Bowden will do the pulling and grunting with Mr. F. W. Carter of Wallace named as alternate.

This tug of war will be just part of the entertainment, and it is believed that the above will be worth the trip to the station on that date. Now for those who haven't even visited the tug farm, or been present at the annual field day, it will be a day well spent if you attend. Don't forget the date, Thursday, September 12th.

CONSCIENCE

The sound of a mighty gong, loud cheering, bands playing, flags waving, whistles blowing, papers flying as the last farewells are said. We are moving, the great ship of imagination is going up, up, up and the earth seems to be literally slipping away from us, growing smaller and smaller until we are finally unable to see it at all. What a strange feeling and yet it seems perfectly natural that we should be bounding through space at great speed. We are heading backwards through the years of time, back to the beginning of history, back thousands of years into the past where everything so different from today. Just what will happen where will we land, will we receive a grand welcome, what will we see before landing, if we do land what will we do then, why the trip and how can it have anything to do with alcoholic drinks, will the trip remain imaginary or real? Look! Beautiful colors are playing about everywhere, seems to be showing every color of the spectrum trying to outshine the other. Now the great windows are being covered with a transparent substance to screen out poisonous rays. We are told that the ship is passing through hundreds of years of poisonous rays and gasses but the effect to us is really thrilling because we know that we are protected in every way. Aboard our ship there is real life, every one happy and alert for what may happen next.

Eulogy Of Mrs. Elsa Houston Farrior

(Special For The Times)
In response to requests from friends of the family, Rev. F. L. Goodman has given the following eulogy read at the funeral of Mrs. Elsa Houston Farrior Tuesday.

Mrs. Elsa Houston Farrior was born in Saluda, N. C., October 22, 1882. She came to Duplin County and was married to Mr. Lewis C. Houston, Jr. in December 1926. Mrs. Farrior was married to Mr. E. A. Farrior, of Kenansville, and to them was born one son, Abraham.

Mrs. Farrior's life speaks so clearly the manifestation of her soul that I feel that comments would only be repetition. She is known throughout the county as the messenger of good will and peace. Every where she went, she left her smile shining from the face of a newly made friend. No one was too high for her to attempt to serve, and no one was too low for her to stop and lift from the mire.

No one could find her idle. She was constantly busy helping some one to get firm footing again, or training the children that God had entrusted to her, or preparing her self for her mission to suffering humanity.

The challenging figure of "Miss Elsa" dressed in her white uniform has inspired old and young, white and colored, to take a new hold on life. Many stand with bowed heads in sacred memory to testify to the good that she has done for them.

Something of her inner self can be seen shining through her sympathetic, patient, and tender dealings with her invalid son.

She was a member of the Episcopal church and bore all of the marks of a follower of the master.

Mrs. Farrior is survived by her two children, Margaret and Abraham, her mother, Mrs. G. V. Rountree, four sisters and three brothers.

LEWIS C. HOUSTON, JR.

Lewis C. Houston, Jr., better known to us as Lukie, who will be placed in the grave beside his mother, always carried on his face the smile of victory, even though back of that face there was always a physical weakness that he was never able to conquer. He was a faithful member of his Sunday School, and an ideal Boy Scout, having attained his Tenderfoot rank.

Lukie is now released from the bondage of the thorn in the flesh and with the new body that Jesus has given him over there, he will be able to join with his loved ones who have gone on before in a larger and more active service.

They have passed on, but pleasant memories of them will linger long in the hearts of the people of Duplin County.

Kornegay Reunion Largely Attended

Mount Olive, Sept. 5.—The sons and daughters, grandchildren and other relatives and in-laws of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Kornegay, who live in Duplin county near Mount Olive, held their sixth annual reunion at the Kornegay home. This reunion was more largely attended than any one of the past and was conceded to be the most delightful and successful from every standpoint. The lavish picnic dinner which was spread on a long table under the trees, consisted of barbecue with all the usual accompaniments, supplemented by quantities of fried chicken, ham, and all the delicious cakes, pies and other home-made delicacies for which the section is famous.

Farmers Warned

Kinston, Sept. 5.—Police here broadcast a warning to farmers today to beware of confidence men—and women—and pickpockets. Authorities said the eastern North Carolina tobacco market towns had been invaded by numbers of tricksters and small racketeers planning to prey on weed farmers. They advised farmers not to be unduly friendly with strangers. Extra patrolmen and plain clothes men have been detained to the tobacco district here.
