

CLEVELAND'S FAVORITE SON, CLYDE R. HOEY OFFERED FOR GOVERNOR

(By LEE B. WEATHERS)
(In The Cleveland Star)

Clyde R. Hoey, who has been for more than two decades one of the most colorful figures in the public life of North Carolina, is a candidate for Governor in the Democratic primary to be held in June, 1934.

There is hardly a man, woman or child in the county who does not know Mr. Hoey and hold him in the very highest esteem. It is freely predicted that not a single vote will be cast against him in the county for he holds the good will of the people as perhaps no other man in public life.

Born in Shelby, N. C., on December 11, 1877, the son of a Confederate army officer, Capt. S. A. and Mrs. Charlie Roark Hoey, his life story reads very much like a chapter out of fiction instead of real life.

The average North Carolinian not familiar with the intimate details of the Shelby man's early life would hardly realize that he has not attended school since the age of 12 years, except for a short law course in the University of North Carolina summer school. Yet his self-education, started in boyhood when it became necessary to leave school in order to earn his livelihood, has been so thorough that for years he has been ranked as one of the state's leading attorneys and one of the south's most outstanding orators.

He worked on a farm, while not attending school, until the age of 12 and then entered a printing office and began work as "the shop devil" to learn the trade. At the age of 17 he purchased, on credit, the newspaper for which he worked and became publisher and editor thereof. When only 20 years of age he was elected to the state legislature, serving two terms in the house and one in the state senate. He studied law, in the meantime, at night at home and during the rare few hours of leisure at the printing office, where he was still one of the printers as well as owner and editor. Following a brief study of law one summer at Carolina, he obtained his law license, when just 21 years of age, and began the practice of law in connection with his newspaper work. In 1908, after 14 years as "devil", printer, and editor-lawyer he disposed of his newspaper interests and has since devoted his full time to the practice of law.

Few men have participated in more political campaigns for the Democratic party and, during the last twenty years, he has spoken in practically all of the 100 counties in North Carolina. Mr. Hoey's persuasive oratorical talent has been drafted, or rather volunteered for every state and national campaign of any importance since 1910. Despite his work for the party and its candidates, in which he has remained consistently Democratic through victory and defeat, the widely known Shelby attorney has held only one elective office, and that for a very short period, since his early experience in the general assembly. He was appointed assistant district attorney in 1913, and served in that capacity until 1919, when he was elected to congress from the old ninth, now the tenth district, but declined to seek re-election.

He has been a member of the Methodist church since the age of 10, and is today one of the best known laymen in the Southern Methodist church. For 15 years he has taught a large Bible class in his home church and is a member of the following lodges: Masonic, Odd Fellows, Junior Order, Woodmen of the World and Knights of Pythias, Kiwanis.

Mr. Hoey married Miss Bessie Gardner in 1900 and they have three children: Clyde, Jr., Charles and Miss Isabel.

CONSCIENCE

Down, down, nearer and nearer the earth. We see people, or forms that resemble human beings, rushing excitedly in every direction. We are going to anchor, but before doing so there is something we must do. This will take some time but it is necessary.

If you remember you were told at the beginning that this was to be an educational trip. Aboard our great ship we have a wonderful school which every one must enter and prepare for what lies ahead. We must know more about the strange land which we are about to enter.

We enter the great school, and now hear the voice of our instructor as it rings clearly and loudly. He is speaking of life and of God: We are told to follow closely, to leave imagination for the present, and study the real facts as given to us.

"In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." Gen. 1:1.

For there to be life, there must be a place for life to exist. If there is a place for life to exist, something must have made that place. It surely could not have manufactured itself, especially such a wonderful place as this earth upon which we live. Time was when the great heavenly bodies swinging about in space were a great mystery to us, and they are yet, but we have learned much and the more we learn the more we are convinced that a great power controls everything. We have history of supposed facts dating far back. Facts gathered and published by various authors, it would take time to explain them and their authors, but we are going to turn to one, the great book of facts, the acknowledged book of books an dfrom it learn about this great place called the earth.

This book is the BIBLE. Some may say, "but why should we believe it more than other books, who made the bible, why was it made, is it really true, should we believe what we read in it, literally, is it not a man made book?" Well let us see.

Next, week we will be in our school. We are going to learn strange facts, all who study us and master these lessons will be pleased. We shall study as we travel, from time to time entering our school real bible knowledge. Be with us every week. THRILLS A-HEAD.

New Modern Filling Sta. To Be Erected

Faison, Oct. 17.—Work on a new modern filling station to be constructed here is expected to begin next week. The site of this new building is on Main and Railroad street. It was learned from a good source that this service station would belong to the Sinclair Refining Company. Also that upon the completion of this service station it would be complete with the most modern up-to-date equipment for serving every automobile owner.

Sale Of Black Walnuts

Most every farm has on it one or more Black Walnut trees. There is a good demand for Walnut and Hickory Nut kernels during the fall and most of the winter months. Up until the middle of the fall, they are salable in the hull, after that the kernels are bought. At present the price is about 10c per pound for good, clean, dry, hulled black walnuts in the shell. They should be gathered as soon as they drop and then hulled. A good method of hulling is to run them through an old fashioned man powered corn sheller, then allow to dry thoroughly before marketing.

If you wish to market the kernels, follow the following suggestions:

1. Gather the nuts as soon as they drop. Remove the hull, and spread the nuts and allow to dry.
2. When thoroughly dry, crack the nuts and pick out the kernels.
3. Throw away the black or

Ford V-8 Streamlining Steps Ahead

THE IMPROVED streamlining of the front end of the Ford V-8 for 1934 is well illustrated by this camera shot. Note the horn set into the fender apron behind a chromium grille and the way the graceful contour of the fender is carried to the edge of the new radiator grille. A glimpse of the new hood louvers is caught behind the headlamp. The V-8 insignia on the prow of the car is of new design.

shriveled kernels, as they are worthless and if left in bring down the value of the good kernels.

4. Go over the kernels carefully and pick out all pieces of shell, for if left in these also reduce the value of the good kernels.

5. Use a 1-8 inch screen and sift out all screenings and granules which have no value and will make the whole shipment bring a much lower price if left in. The larger the kernels, the more the value.

6. Spread the kernels out thin on clean boards or clean wrapping paper in a sheltered place and allow to dry thoroughly. Don't be in too big a hurry to deliver, and never ship kernels until completely dry and cured, as they will heat and mold and then be worthless.

7. Always ship in boxes or barrels. Never use sacks, as they are seldom clean and the kernels break up and may be otherwise damaged in transit. However, it is a good idea to put the kernels in good clean sacks, and then in a box and ship. Then in case the box is crushed in transit, the kernels do not lose out.

8. Remember that Walnut Kernels are a food product, so they should be nice plump kernels, bright and clean, free from shells and well cured.

9. By following the above rules you will have fine quality which always secures a ready cash market, and the best price. Poor quality is often hard to sell even at a low price.

Road Construction Near Sarecta

The road construction crew is at work rebuilding the Halleville Sarecta highway and beginning at the intersection near B. F. Grady school they have now reached Sarecta. The road has been completed part of the way and those traveling report that it is as smooth as the paved road. The present road bed is being plowed and made wider and dragged to a smooth surface.

The bridge across Limestone Creek at Halleville was repaired last week and is now in fine condition. The old floor has become rotten and much of the decayed wood had been clipped off by passing wheels and the bridge surface had become almost dangerous to pass over. We are glad that this new floor has been laid and now travel is comfortable and safe.
