A PLEA FOR CONSERVATION

Almighty God with lavish hand,
Has given to this glorious land,
His gifts, with no reservation,
Ungrateful man, with sinful haste
Has squandered bounty in shameful waste.

The game he slew,
Until but a pitiful few,
Remain throughout the nation,
The fish he caught,
And reckoned naught
Of the havoc he wrought;
The trees he felled
Until the Woodlands held
Naught but deforestation;
Until at last, when his acts appall
He sends a panic call,
To practice conservation.
So let us try,
In answer to his cry,
To leave from our prosperity
A generous surplus to posterity,
So that upon the Judgment day
We may kneel and humbly pray.
Lord God of hosts, we ask you
Your kindly consideration,
And for our Souls salvation,
Because throughout our lives
We preached and practiced, too,
That splendid gospel - "Conservation."

QUALITY CHICKS MAKE GOOD POULTRY FLOCKS

No poultryman can develop a flock of good layers from a brood of inferior chicks.

Good chicks make good birds, said Roy S. Dearstyne, head of the poultry department at State College, and good birds make profitable flocks.

Some poultrymen can breed and raise their own chicks with satisfactory results, he said, but most flock owners in this State will find it better to purchase chicks from a reliable hatchery.

The best chicks come from disease-free parents, are true to breed, and develop into superior layers. A carefully bred chick receives from its parents certain characteristics which carry with them the success or failure of the poultryman.

Among the most vital factors transmitted from parent to chick are:

1. Production. A hen producing only 1000 eggs.

2. Egg size. The size of the egg laid by a bird is a characteristic coming directly from its parents. Large eggs bring better prices than small ones.

3. Early maturity. This bears a direct relation to broiler prices, as every poultryman attempting to market poorly feathered birds has discovered.

4. Early sexual maturity. Frequently the well bred Reds or Rocks will come into production 60 days sooner than inferior birds, thus giving 60 days extra production.

5. Give these things serious consideration when breeding or purchasing chicks for the coming year, Dearstyne urges.

The fight was over. Capt. told of one of the games when one had to call "Downs" before the down was called by the referee. He was called on to carry the ball on one play and was thrown to the ground and the boys began to climb on to make him call out "Down". The pressure became so great that his nose and mouth were pushed into the ground so down, that the players

SCIENTIFIC PORK CURING

Take the guess work out of meat-curing if you want to have a well preserved supply of pork this winter and next spring.

The curing process has been reduced to a science, said R. E. Nance, professor of animal husbandry at State College, and there is no need for any farm to lose its meat through spoilage.

After the hogs have been killed and dressed, he said, the carcasses should be split down the center of the backbone, the leaf fat removed from the lower end of the ribs, and the meat, hung in a smoke house to chill over night. Do not let the meat freeze.

The next morning, trim all ragged edges from each cut; wash out and thoroughly scald the containers in which the meat is to be cured. Oak barrels or large stone jars make good curing vessels.

The many methods of curing meat are variations of either the brine cure or the dry salt cure. The latter is considered more satisfactory in the South.

Be sure that all animal heat has escaped from the meat before the curing process is started. The temperature of the curing room should be kept between 34 and 40 degrees, if possible.

In the dry cure, Nance recommends for each 100 pounds of meat a mixture of 8 pounds of salt, three ounces of salt peter, and three pounds of sugar, brown preferred.

Rubb half the mixture on the meat, then pack it in the container side down, but turn the skin side up on the top layer. Seven days later, repack the meat, and rub on the remainder of the curing mixture.

After each piece of meat has cured three days for each pound of weight, wash it off and hang it in the smokehouse. Smoke it to suit the taste. If the smokehouse is not fly-proof, wrap the meat in heavy paper and place it in tin cloth bags.

Disaster Victims

Tornadoes, Fires, Hurricanes, Floods, Epidemics, Mass Record of Year

The American Red Cross national officers in more disasters throughout the United States during the year ending June 30, 1935, than through any similar period in the peacetime history of the organization, Admiral Grayson, chairman, revealed recently in commenting on the annual report which has just been released.

"The 123 domestic disasters in which the Red Cross extended aid during the fiscal year exceeded by 65 per cent the average over the past few years," Admiral Grayson said. "Not only was the period heavy in the number of disasters, but the geographical distribution was wide, with 37 States and 353 counties affected."

"Through these disasters and times of community distress, the Red Cross assisted 110,000 persons," the Admiral disclosed.

Spectacular service was rendered in many disasters because of the uniqueness of the problems and the far-flung points affected. The work of the National organization covered in the report carries stories of the Morro Castle burning; the trench-mouth epidemic in the beautiful San Luis Valley of Colorado; the great fight over a wide front in the Midwest dust bowl against respiratory diseases; floods, hurricanes, and tornadoes in many sections of the United States.

In addition to the disasters taking place within the continental limits of this country, Admiral Grayson pointed out that work had been made necessary by disasters in Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and the Philippines, where 36 disasters were recorded in that archipelago. The American Society also assisted the Red Cross of two foreign countries in caring for victims of floods and earthquakes.

The variation of types of disasters called for expert counsel on matters relating to health and nutrition as well as epidemic prevention. Last year's work proved the value of the structure and administration of the Red Cross disaster relief, the Admiral said, the very frequency of occurrence and the variety of types constituting a severe test of the organization chartered by Congress to handle this type of National relief.

Expenditures of the Red Cross for relief of persons stricken by disasters within the continental United States amounted to $464,415. In addition, $75,000 was sent to the Philippines to assist them in three major relief operations necessitated by typhoons, $5,000 went to victims of the Indian earthquake, and $5,000 to Poland for victims of severe floods. A number of smaller foreign emergencies called for sums totaling $2300.

The months of February, March, April, May and June were harried for tornado disasters. Floods occurred throughout the year. Serious fires calling for Red Cross assistance took place during July and December. A devastating explosion took place in Tennessee during April. Most of the hurricanes struck States along the east coast during the fall and early winter.

"All of this assistance to persons in distress," Admiral Grayson pointed out, "was only possible through generous contributions made by citizens in all sections of the country."

Most of this support of the disaster relief service comes from the annual Roll Call held each year from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day.
