MY SAVIOR DYING FOR ALL

Behold! What procession goeth yonder?

I would like very much to know. I see one in the midst,

Whose radiance is whiter than snow.

O! 'Tis my Saviour!

'Tis the one I have trusted so. Where are they carrying my Master?

Isn't there something I can do?

Then from the midst of the procession,

From under a burdened cross, These words come echoing back,

In the form of a still small voice.

"I am the Saviour of the world, I am dying for your blackened sins.

You can tell the world of a Saviour

Who is suffering and dying for them."

Then as I looked and beheld,

They placed him upon that awful tree.

What sins have been committed, O Saviour

That you must die for the world, and me?

Then amid spittle and mockery, They placed a crown upon his head.

No, not a crown of jewels and gold,

But a crown of the greatest dread.

But what a victory for Christ, Who was crowned with thorns that day;

And was buried amid noise and strife,

And rose again the third day.

Are not my feeble efforts, Due to the suffering Christ?

Am I not in turn for his love, To give self — as sacrifice?

Yes, Master, that is what I can do. Give self and all I have,

And for a chance to serve, O Saviour,

For that, I am truly glad.

CLEANING TOBACCO SEED

Farm Agent Reynolds is being kept busy these days cleaning tobacco seed for Duplin farmers. The cleaning device was made at State College and is so constructed as to blow out all light seed and trash and leave only the heavy seed for planting. This will insure the planter a greater percentage germination. Mr. Reynolds is advocating the planting of a larger plant bed than you would usually plant for your acreage because of the danger of Blue Mold and plant insects. Some few farmers have already planted the beds but most of them are preparing to get the seed in the ground by the last of the month and are now at work on the soil.

"HAPPY IN-LAWS"

We're just the happiest bunch I know.

Of in-laws in the land, We dearly love to get together In every kind of weather.

We laugh and joke, and have our fun,

Discussing many things, We each one love our flower yards And work in them so very hard.

We never grumble or complain About the man we got, But each one feels quite sure you bet,

They got the very best Blanchard yet.

Laura Jane has just come in, Our happy band to join We welcome her she brings good cheer,

And happiness throughout the year.

There's Mary dear. She is so sweet And modest in her ways, She always bids us welcome come, And feeds us 'till we look like buns.

When it comes right down to looks The prize will have to go, For Hazel has her share you know,

Before I told you so.

And Mattie Belle, bless her old heart,

I've never seen her yet, But what she smiled and made us feel,

That life was yet worth while.

Pearls children are a credit sweet And one you'll seldom find, Brought up by just a mother dear Without a darling daddy care.

A Jewel rare, that's hard to find Is Docia in her home, I doubt you find it anywhere, She's worthy of a home up there.

I am the oldest of the gang, And time is slipping fast,

But try to keep the blues away, By doing some kind deed each day.
