ROSEHILL SOCIETY NEWS
DENNING-TEACHEY

The marriage of Miss Verna Teachey and Therman Denning took place at 9 o'clock, Thursday morning, August 19th in the home of the bride, Rev. E. C. Maness performed the ring ceremony in the presence of relatives and close friends.

The home was decorated in green and white. In the living room, against a background of ferns and southern smilax an altar was improvised, white candelabra holding cathedral candles, and large baskets of white crepe myrtle. Lewis Maness, usher, lighted the candles before the entrance of the wedding party. Mrs. L. K. Alderman rendered a program of nuptial music, and Mrs. John Bailey, soloist, of Smithfield, sang, "At Dawning" and "Ain't Sweet Mystery of Life."

Miss Myrtle Teachey, sister of the bride, and Miss Martha Grey Murray, as ribbon girls, were the bride's only attendants. They wore identical dresses of green crepe trimmed in brown. Their shoulder corsages were pink roses and snapdragons.

The bride and bridegroom entered together. The bride wore for the service a dress of brown and green alpaca with brown accessories, and her flowers were a shoulder corsage of Talisman roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Denning is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Teachey. She attended Wesleyan Methodist college and East Carolina Teacher's College. For the past few years she has been a member of the local school faculty. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Denning, of Mt. Olive. He received his degree from Atlantic Christian College and since that time has been athletic coach in the local school.

Immediately after the ceremony the couple left for a wedding trip to the mountains of Western North Carolina.

First English Tragedy

The first real tragedy in the English language was not written until ten years after the first English comedy, "Ralph Roister Doister," says the Montreal Herald. The authors were Thomas Norton and Thomas Sackville, Earl of Dorset. It was called "Gorboduc" and was acted by the gentlemen of the Inner Temple "before the Queen's most excellent Majesty, in her highness' Court of Whitehall, the 18th day of January, 1561."

TODAY'S CHILDREN ARE TOMORROW'S LEADERS

We—the adults of today, are responsible for the greatest of industries—the education of our children—the manufacture of their minds into substance which shall lead them to a better understanding of themselves . . . of international affairs . . . of world progress. We have much which to inspire our children—most particularly the greatness of our country, and the confidence which the very name America suggests in every section of the globe. A confidence which is best taught and furthered by our large number of grammar and high schools, colleges and renowned universities.
