

FARM QUESTIONS

QUESTION: How can I save my corn crop and a average yield? The corn plants are usually planted in rows, and a good ventilation, ever so often, and a good feeding schedule, these conditions should be maintained. All kinds showing symptoms of corn such as nasal discharge or heavy eyes should be looked at once. The flock should be given green salts at the rate of one-half pound of salt to three gallons of drinking water. Then the house and utensils should be thoroughly cleaned and disinfected. When the disease is well established it is not economical to treat individuals and these should be destroyed. Keep a good garnish in the drinking water as long as there is evidence of the trouble.

QUESTION: What is the best mode of weeding for vetch, crimson clover, and Austrian winter peas? ANSWER: Twenty pounds of seed to the acre should be used for vetch and from 30 to 50 lbs. for Austrian winter peas. Both of these crops should be covered a foot two inches deep for best germination. Either unshelled or shelled crimson clover seed may be used, but where the unshelled seed can be used the seedling should be 25 pounds to the acre as compared with 30 to 35 pounds of the shelled seed. This crop should be covered lightly with about half an inch of soil. All the crops may be seeded in the present and coastal plain areas anytime before October 10 when soil conditions are favorable.

QUESTION: How much time should elapse after a cow freshens before she can be put on full feed? ANSWER: This depends upon the physical condition of the cow, but as a usual thing it requires about three weeks after freshening before the animal is on full feed. The first day's feed should consist of wheat bran and ground oats in equal parts. On the fifth day the cow may be started on the regular milking ration and gradually brought to full feed in a bout three weeks.

BUY A HAYWELL
Agricultural & Industrial Agent
Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co.

The latest crop report seems to clearly show that farmers in Virginia and the Carolinas are becoming hay minded, and that they realize that it is cheaper and for less taxing on their resources to produce hay instead of continuing the purchase plan which was in use for many years because of the love of cash crops.

Surprising as it may seem farm income from our great money crops has ceased to buy all that we need. Our needs have expanded beyond our means. It is therefore necessary that we support and conserve our cash-crop dollars in every possible way in order that they may be stretched to cover our imperative needs.

While we are on the subject of hay, I am reporting some advice recently extended to North Carolina farmers by John A. Arvy, extension dairy specialist.

Mr. Arvy's advice follows: "Coarseness, late cutting, and improper curing cause a large amount of low quality hay in North Carolina each year. This inferior quality hay has a lower protein and vitamin content than number one hay. The percentage of waste when it is fed to farm animals is also much greater than that for good quality hay. Leafiness and a bright green color are requirements for No. 1 hay. Most of the protein is found in the leaves, and a bright green color indicates a high vitamin content. There is a direct relationship between the vitamin content of milk and the roughage which the cow consumes. Therefore, it is important that the animal receive hay of a high vitamin content. Growers should follow three rules if they wish to produce a good quality hay: First-The farmer should use liberally. This feeding results in hearty, vigorous hay. Second-Get early. Alfalfa should be harvested when one-fourth to one-third in bloom, soybeans when seed are about one-half developed, lespedeza when around 50 per cent in bloom, cowpeas when the first pods begin to yellow, and clover, such as wheat, oats, and barley when the seed are in the milk stage of maturity. Third-The growers should cure their hay as rapidly as possible, but should not overcure. This causes leaves to fall off and leaves out the green color."

Five one-day meetings for the Red Cross course in Home Hygiene and care of the sick, will be held in North Carolina beginning September 17th, according to an announcement from the office of Mrs. Harvey Benoy, Executive Secretary of the Duplin County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Red Cross Meets Home Hygiene

Miss Alice B. Berger, Nursing Field Representative for North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Florida is conducting these meetings.

The meeting for this district will be held at the Tidewater Power Company, on September 17. Those from this county, who expect to attend should send a post card to the Chapter host. At Wilmington this will be Mrs. Ida B. Spiden, Executive Secretary of the Wilmington Chapter.

FAIR WEATHER TIME IS A CRITICAL PERIOD

Forecasting time is now at its critical period in winter production, according to E. W. Taylor, extension winter specialist at State College.

The pigs must be protected from cold and disease if they are to get a good start in life, he added. Before she is ready to farrow, he went on, put the sows in a field that has been cultivated since the last time large hogs ranged on it.

A farrowing house will increase the chance for a good litter of strong, healthy pigs, Taylor said. Plans for constructing such houses may be obtained from county farm agents.

He warned against letting young pigs go into old hog lots or pens. Keep them on clean land, preferably pasture, until they attain a weight of at least 100 pounds.

The hog outlook for next year is good, he continued. Present indications are that the prices of hogs will be lower, and this will make it possible for producers to realize a greater return on their pigs.

CCC Enrollment
