

DESTROY STALKS—KEEP DOWN INSECTS

Heavy infestations of boll weevils this summer have increased the need for destroying cotton stalks as soon as the cotton has been harvested.

Destroy the stalks as early as possible, said Dr. E. F. Mitchell, entomologist at State College, to prevent the late development of weevils.

The sooner that weevils are deprived of food and a place to hibernates, he pointed out, the less chance they will have of surviving the winter.

He recommended that the stalks be destroyed with a stalk cutter. Then plow or disk the land and sow it to a good winter cover crop, he added.

Likewise, he continued, tobacco stalks should be plowed under immediately after the leaves have been harvested.

When tobacco stalks are left standing in the field, they develop

CLUB MEMBERS EQUIP LAB AND OFFICE FOR USE

Franklin County home demonstration club women take a personal interest in their laboratory and the home agent's office in the new county agricultural building.

The pride they have in these rooms is due largely to the fact that the club women have assumed the responsibility for equipping them, said Miss Ruth Curran, state home agent at State College.

They bought initial linoleum for the floors and working surfaces, and had an electric stove and refrigerator installed. Enough china, glassware, and silver to serve 100 people and about 50 chairs have also been purchased.

In the basement the club women have a workshop where they have placed saws, blocks, hammers, and other equipment for making handcraft articles of brass, copper, tin and other metals, she said.

Under the supervision of Miss Louie Weaver, home agent, the women are fashioning beautiful trays, plaques, and containers of various kinds for flowers, fruits, and foods.

Copper from captured whiskey stills donated by the sheriff and brass from junk piles enables the women to make articles at small cost.

Miss Weaver is also teaching the women to weave. Two looms have been secured for the use of the club members to weave towels, luncheon sets, bags, scarfs, and rugs.

THE CHRISTIAN HOME
Deuteronomy Ch. 6 & 11
Sept. 12, 1937

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and even when he is old, he will not depart from it." The foundation of the civilization is the Home, and as the Homes go, so will our great country. The revolt against authority today and its beginning in lawless home. The carelessness in religion today has its beginning in careless homes.

A mother once came to me and said, "I am afraid for my girls in the world of today. They are now coming to that dangerous period in life, and I am afraid that they will fall." She needed not to be afraid for her children in the world if she has been faithful in training them for the first seven years. The mother usually is the religious thermometer in the home. As she goes, so goes the rest of the family. For that reason the mother's place is in the home. Not in politics, not social life, not business life, but the home first. We may feel that this is tying her down too much, but all great tasks tie men down. To be president of this country you are tied down, but how the citizens of the country are willing to be tied down, to be president, but the job of being a Christian Mother is a far greater task than being president so, why should we grumble at being tied down. The man or woman who is always busy here and there on the streets in social, business or political interests, and who spends little time at home, is neglecting the greatest opportunity that God gives to men and women today. Some one has said, "Children will break your heart some time. How much better to break your heart over them while they are being builded than to have them break your heart later because you failed to build."

We tell our children about God as the Heavenly Father. Their conception of God is based on what they see in their earthly father. How they must be disappointed with God when they interpret Him in the light of some of the fathers today.

Moses was great. Why? He had a praying mother, and one who was willing to sacrifice for him. Samuel was great because he was needs your cooperation. Won't you

PLAN BRICK VENEER FOR WOODLAND

Plans have been made for the erection of a brick veneer building with five Sunday school rooms for Woodland Church.

Last Saturday night, H. N. Haines, of Durham, architect for the Methodist Church in North Carolina, addressed the membership of the church and showed the blue print of the proposed building. The auditorium is to have a seating capacity of 125. The completed building will cost $4,000.

The plan for this year is to hull in the auditorium and two Sunday School rooms in front of the church. This will cost about $2,000. About two-thirds of this amount has been pledged at present. The plan for next year is to furnish the auditorium with new pews, heat, and lighting fixtures, paint, etc. This will cost another thousand. The third year three rooms are to be added at the back of the church and make it T-shaped. The estimated cost of these rooms is $1,000.

Pledges are coming in rapidly on the building to be erected this year, as the people generally are responding. The canvassing committee is still soliciting pledges. Every one who will is asked to help. S. B. Chesnut is chairman of the committee. Rev. Howard M. McLamb is the pastor.
