Field Day Meet To Make Study Conservation

Secretary Henry A. Wallace has accepted an invitation to speak at the field day meeting to be held by the Soil Conservation Service at the Greensboro and High Point projects on Wednesday, October 27. Mr. Wallace will speak in the afternoon at 3 o'clock at the High Point City Lake near Jamestown about four miles east of High Point. Dean I. O. Schaub of State College has been notified by E. D. Garrett, coordinator for the Soil Conservation Service, that the work in the Greensboro and High Point areas will be open to the public on that day and that speakers will be arranged to give visitors to the various points of interest. The entire program will be devoted to an inspection of the work in soil conservation and management. Dean Schaub has written a letter to all county farm agents in the territory urging them to tabulate their former friends in visiting the projects and studying the results secured.

Mr. Garrett says the Chambers of Commerce of both High Point and Greensboro are cooperating with his organization in promoting the purposes of the field day.

Mr. Wallace will also be accompanied by Mrs. Wallace and will also speak to those attending the project. Mr. Wallace will be in the morning at the annual meeting of the North Carolina Grange at the State College. "I am delighted at this coming visit by Secretary Wallace," said Dean Schaub, "and hope that there will be a gathering of farmers from parts of central and western North Carolina present for the first time. It will be well worth the visit of both county agents and farmers to visit the soil erosion project on this occasion."

They Cut 14 Square Yards a Minute

A world's record for scythes cutting was set recently by three Irish farmers who mowed an area of 14 square yards in one minute in a contest between land workers of Zwickl and Edelhof Agriculture College in Lower Austria. Left to right are seen Ignatz Borech, Rupert and Karl Penner of Rudmann, Austria.

Here's a Brand New English Custor

A sign of the times in Old England is this photograph, made during Chatham Navy week, which gives you an idea of the extent to which Europe is suffering from war jitters. The dazed men at left are members of a "decontamination squad," who are rehearsing the duty they hope they'll never have to do—mopping up after a gas attack.

Good Leaf Farmers Grow Small Grains

No tobacco farmers should be satisfied until he has grown enough small grain and hay to supply all home and farm needs. Moreover, hay is expected to be so high in price next year that tobacco growers cannot afford to run the risk of buying hay and growing tobacco to pay for it. Tobacco fields can be prepared easily to raise wheat or small grain, said E. T. Floyd, extension tobacco specialist at State College.

to start small grains. This means that the grain will need only a top-dressing of nitrogen fertilizer about the first of February or the first of March. Tobacco followed by small grains as a winter cover crop is a good crop rotation, Floyd said. He also stated that many growers have not yet cut all their tobacco stalks and plowed under the stubble. "It is very essential to do this to kill the weeds and diseases that would otherwise live in the old leaves, stalks, and roots and be ready to attack next year's crop," he said.
