was to Christ by Paul. It is quite evident that Paul and Titus had been on a missionary tour on the island of Crete where Titus remained to carry on the work. The Epistle of Paul to Titus, written probably about 87 A. D. was to give some much needed instruction with reference to the importance of right living on the part of all Christians. If right living was so important then it is much more important now. If Crete needed the influence of Christian people, Duplin County does also.

1. We need to come back to the realization that Christ came that we might have life. Reading John 10:7-16 included in the larger lesson for today we find the discussion on the shepherd and the sheep. It is extremely difficult to understand why Jesus Christ as the Son of God left heaven; came to earth; took upon Himself the form of man; suffered; and died on a cross. But this passage tells us why! He came that we—all of us—might realize life, the abundant, full, and happy life. This is the life that every man ought to want to live, but it must be lived in obedience to Christ.

2. Every person needs the new life. No Christian is to disregard the authority of rulers or be contentious with those whom they contact daily. As the Christians at Crete were called upon to be all men, so are the Christians of North Carolina. Paul says, "For we ourselves also were sometimes foolish, disobedient, deceived, serving divers lusts and pleasures, living in malice and envy, hateful, and hating one another." How can we, as Christians, exert the right influence over others, or have the right attitude toward all mankind without the New Life in Christ Jesus?

3. We may have the New Life. Yes, by accepting Him as our personal Saviour; crowning Him as King. There is no other way. Paul says, "Not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to His mercy He saved us by the washing of regeneration and renewing of the Holy Ghost; which He shed on us abundantly through Jesus Christ our Saviour." That is to say that God comes into our lives and old things pass away, things become new for we have become new creatures in Him. The things we once loved we now hate—the things we once hated we now love.
