State Men To Stage Banquet

At the meeting held here recently to organize a State College Club for men in the county who have at some time attended State College in Raleigh, it was decided to wait for election of officers until all of the alumni of the school in this county could get together. For that purpose the club will give a banquet next Wednesday night at 7 o'clock at the Woman's Club Hall in Kenansville. Football coaches from State College will attend to talk to the assembly. Plans will go at very unimpaired prices.

It was disclosed at the recent meeting that about 66 men in Duplin County have attended State

MEETINGS TO EXPLAIN FARM PROGRAM POSTPONED UNTIL DEFINITE ACTION IS TAKEN

Meetings scheduled to be held over Duplin county to explain the soil conservation program for the coming year will not be started until the trend of the program, now being considered by Congress, is definitely outlined, according to County Agent Reynolds, who said that as the program now stands it will be voluntary, but that within the next few weeks there is the possibility that it will be made compulsory. Reynolds said that he felt that it would be better to wait until the program is definitely decided upon to hold the meetings than to explain it to the farmers of the county as it now stands and later find it necessary to revise his statements.

Some changes which are to be made this year, he said, include giving more responsibility to the township and county committees, which will administer the program, and what was previously referred to as the "allotment" will become the "goal." Payments this year will be made in direct proportion to the acreage up to the goal, and beyond the goal a corresponding penalty will be exacted.

The biggest upsets in the program this year will come in the system of working out base acreage, Reynolds predicts, as added experience has indicated the faults of the present system and suggested improvements. One clause which will be stressed more than in any previous year is that the committee's allowance on controlled crops shall be governed not only by the base acreage of that crop, but shall be held to the acreage which is considered in compliance with "Good Farming Practices," in order that a man who has always had too much tobacco or cotton, or some other money crop, will be led to grow more foodstuffs and become more self-reliant.

CHAIRMAN DUPLIN COUNTY RED CROSS ROLL CALL GIVES NAMES COUNTY WORKERS

Dr. R. L. Carr, Chairman Duplin County Red Cross Roll Call announces the workers who have the roll call drive in charge and states that the roll call in some communities is progressing nicely while in some others it is lagging. With the corps of efficient workers for the drive we feel confident that the quota we are asked to raise this year should be accomplished. Last year our quota was $300 and we raised $315, whereas this year's quota is $500 and we must reach our goal this time.

The workers in charge in each vicinity selecting their assistants are as follows:

Killer of Moore Again Escapes

Leslie Cox, negro who killed Patrolman Ike Moore last July and was caught recently in New York by federal agents, escaped from officers last week while being returned to North Carolina to face charges of murder, and was the subject of a search about Alexandria, Va., where he escaped, in which 100 men and bloodhounds took part.

Cox escaped when officers who were bringing him to North Carolina stopped at an eating place and found that the negro would not be allowed to eat inside. Sheriff Paul Garrison, of Wayne county, went inside and bought a sandwich for Cox and it was while he was receiving the change that the negro escaped.

MRS. HATTIE COX GAYLOR

Mrs. Hattie Cox Gaylor died Friday morning November 19, at 10:45 o'clock. She was a daughter of the late James Woodard and Mary Catherine Cox and was born in Wayne County January 31, 1867. She was 70 years, 9 1-2 months old. She had been in failing health several years and was confined to her bed much of the time, having been very ill several weeks and suddenly passed away with a heart attack.

She married Charlie P. Gaylor, April 2, 1899. He preceded her April 7, 1916.

Among the office girls Christine Whaley was the only one to come in early Sunday night, and she led the scoring with 8 points, leaving the others slightly behind.

Misses Speel, Williams, Warr, Smith, Dobson and Dixon were the teammates who grunted for Whaley as she tallied. On the opposing team such imposing figures as Harlan, Groce, Faye, Raiford, Neece, Pollock and Bowen appeared to sweep their competition off its feet with better play and brighter lipstick. Harlan, Groce and Faye took the scoring honors.

Referee Peavine Reynolds, who sees every thing through smoked glasses, likened the besweatshirts Baboons to notorious characters of the American present: O. P. Johnson became Al Capone; Les Williams, Jim Farley; Faison McGowan, Gaston B. MRS. BONEY MADE DIST. SECRETARY

Mrs. Harvey C. Boney was elected Secretary of the Southeastern district at the District Welfare Conference held in Elizabeth City Tuesday, J. R. Hollis, of New Hanover county, was elected president. The district is composed of 11 counties.

Wallace to Have Pecan Market to Absorb Surplus

The Lions Club of Wallace, has made arrangements with the Carolina Cooperatives Consolidated, of South Carolina, to send buyers to Wallace and buy the surplus pecans expected to be harvested in this section this year. As this is something of an experiment to determine whether Duplin is in need of an outlet for pecans for which there is no home market buyers for the cooperative organization will be here only a few days during the season.

The first cooperative buying was done Tuesday, and the next date has not yet been set.

The Cooperation necessarily confines its selling to wholesale transactions, and consequently is unable to pay retail price for pecans. Prices this year are unusually low, and growers are expected to use the outlet only if there is no other market for their nuts.

Baboons Victors In Great Battle

Kenansville's "Bearded Baboons," the pride and joy of the town and county, rose to the heights of their glory Mon. night to trounce a hard-fighting five, "The Hairless Hoppers," of the high school reserves, by a decisive score of 38 to 19, while their running-mates, the "Working Girls," had an off night and lost to the tripping toed team of timid teachers 24 to 8, or thereabouts (exact scores are not available, as the ensuing melee has not been ended, and the official referee cannot be dug out).

Maurice and Clifton Brinson are reported to have led the scoring attack (and every other attack except the one by Our Bob Wells) for the fast-stepping married men, although it is the consensus of opinion that the round-the-townners would have lost without the services of such stalwart men as McGowan, Honeycutt, Jones, Gooding, Williams, Wells, Johnson and Dickson. Leary was high scorer for the Hoppers, with a total of 9 points. It is supposed that dirty work on the part of the unofficial officials, Cap'n Jimmy Jerritt and Farmer Peavine Reynolds, had something to do with the final score in the game between the male elements.

Among the office girls Christine Whaley was the only one to come in early Sunday night, and she led the scoring with 8 points, leaving the others slightly behind. Misses Speel, Williams, Warr, Smith, Dobson and Dixon were the teammates who grunted for Whaley as she tallied. GOV. HOEY ASKS UNEMPLOYMENT WORKERS REMEMBER ARE SERVANTS OF PEOPLE OF STATE

Unemployment benefits will be paid four weeks after January to eligible unemployed persons who have established satisfactory work records during this year, due to the two weeks waiting period and the law and the mechanics of its operation, Chairman Charles G. Powell, of the Unemployment Compensation Commission said today.

Covered workers who became unemployed along now should register at their nearest employment office for work. If they are still unemployed or become unemployed by January 1, they also should register on that date for unemployment compensation and continue to report weekly undesignated days, for suitable work and to show they are still unemployed.

After reporting weekly for two weeks without getting work, then they become eligible for unemployment benefits for the third week. However, they must report at the end of the third week, and their unemployment benefits check will be ready for them one week later, or just four weeks after they reported their unemployment and applied for benefits.

The Employment Service offices are expecting a heavy registration on January 1, of those who become unemployed during the latter part of this year and last members are making all efforts to get ready for that rush period.

Three shifts of workers are busy 24 hours a day in the Raleigh office getting the wage records of workers, sent in quarterly by the employers, posted and up to date by the end of the year, so there will be no delay in getting the checks out as due.

Special appeals are being sent to employers who are not up to date in filing their quarterly wage reports as required by law. These will be followed by urgent demands to those who are still delinquent.

Gov. Clyde R. Hoey called for efficient, sympathetic and understanding of the Employment Service Division of the N. C. Unemployment Compensation Commission at a two-day conference of ten district and 35 branch managers of the employment offices in the State last week, called by Director R. Mayne Albright. Governor Hoey asked the Employment Service workers not to lose sight of the fact that they are the servants of the citizen-ship of the State.

Chairman Charles G. Powell, of the commission, told the managers that haughtiness, self-importance and offensiveness have no place in the Employment Service and will not be tolerated.

The conference was in preparation for handling employment in connection with the unemployment benefits, which start for eligible workers as of January 1. Workers who become unemployed report to the nearest employment office, apply for work and for benefits, and, after two weeks of unemployment, if they have a proper work record, they begin to draw benefits. District conferences for all members of the staffs will be held soon to acquaint employment office workers with their added duties.
