Southern Farm Summary

Sept. 4—Average tobacco prices declined during the past week due to smaller returns for lower qualities on both North and South Carolina markets, according to the War Food Administration. Highlighting the week's trading was action taken to alleviate a serious labor shortage by limiting sales from 5 to 3 1-2 hours daily. The Georgia and Florida season officially ended on Sept. 1 with 1943 sales approximately 84 1-2 million pounds bringing a record high average price of $38.50 per hundredweight.

Cotton markets took a downward turn, reflecting increased new crop movement. New York October closed on Sept. 4 at 20.14, down 14 points for the week.

Limitations on farmers who slaughter meat for home consumption are in no way changed by the order issued this week suspending for two months quota restrictions on livestock slaughter and meat delivery, WFA announced. In the cattle markets in the Southern Region, as well as for the country as a whole, receipts continued to increase during the past week and prices again worked lower, bringing values more in line with wholesale ceilings. Short pastures and prospective feed shortages in some southern areas have contributed to the accelerated movement with some reports of cattle going to market unfinished. Best offerings in the Southeast were medium grades which brought $13.00. In Tennessee and Kentucky a few good grades brought up to $13.75-14.00. Vealers have held steadier than other classes with tops in Tenn. and Ken. of $16.00-17.00; Georgia, Florida and Alabama $14.75.

Hog receipts at southern markets increased considerably while movement for the country as a whole showed a normal seasonal decrease, although this year's larger hog crop total arrivals well above those of a year ago. Prices held recent gains and tops closed in the southeastern area at $14.50 Nashville $14.95, Richmond $14.60 North Carolina cash buying stations $14.45-14.60. The egg and poultry situation at southern markets has not changed during the past week. Poultry offerings continued fairly liberal with some classes weaker, while eggs were seasonally scarce and high at most markets. Broilers and fryers in Atlanta brought 25 to 28 3-4 cents, Raleigh and Richmond 28 1-2 cents; hens in Atlanta 23-25 Raleigh 22-25, Richmond 20-25 per lb. with colored breeds generally at the top price; ungraded current egg receipts in Atlanta 40, Raleigh 39-43, Richmond 40-41 a dozen. Carlot fruit and vegetable movement in the Southeast remained light with most shipments by truck to nearby markets at unchanged to slightly higher prices. Sweet potatoes were weaker at terminal markets as movement increased. Peanuts have begun to move in the southeastern area at prices established under CCC contracts.

Food Production Movie Coming To Duplin Theatre

"Twenty Fighting Men" Shows Graphic Need of More "Food for Victory."

Farmers and food producers of this community will find much "food for thought" in the wartime Food Production Movie

"Twenty Fighting Men" to be shown at the Duplin Theatre, September 14th and 16th.

Produced in the interests of more "Food for Victory" by Purina Mills, St. Louis, Mo., and brought to our local theatre by Warsaw Flour and Feed Mills, Purina Dealer, "Twenty Fighting Men" is a graphic presentation of the vital need of additional food production for our armed forces and allies.

The picture opens with dramatic war shots taken from War Department files showing how food has been destroyed all over Europe, how necessary food is to our armed forces abroad, and how quickly farmers have responded to the need for increased wartime production.

Hero of the movie is a typical farm boy, home on leave, who attends a meeting of neighboring farmers and recalls the important role which food is playing in the incident of how American food captured a North African fort without a shot fired or a life lost. Based on his former experience on an average U. S. farm, the soldier proves that enough additional food can be produced on each farm through better management, more careful sanitation against disease and parasites, and better feeding to produce enough meat, milk and eggs for twenty fighting men for one year.

The picture ends with a strong appeal from the soldier to his friends to do their part in producing the food for an extra "Twenty Fighting Men", for unless American farmers win their battle of production at home, he states, their sons and brothers cannot win the battle abroad.

The story of "Twenty Fighting Men" speaks to the patriotism and good sense of American farmers through one of their own boys in uniform to make every pound of feed do the best possible job and to wage unceasing war on waste, disease and unnecessary production accidents.

The movie is a part of a "Food for Victory" Crusade now being sponsored by Warsaw Flour and Feed Mills, a feature of which is the free service of the Company's employees in assisting local farmers reach their wartime food production goals.

IT COULD BE WORSE

A hard working farmer had kept his son in college for 4 years at great sacrifice. He was notified by the college that his son would not be able to graduate with his class.

The farmer interviewed the college president and learned that his son's English was so poor that they would not grant a diploma.

glish being poor?" asked the father. "Well, for instance," replied the president, "your son always says 'I seen' and 'I have saw'."

"Well, I guess that's pretty bad," said the father, "but I want to say this, Mr. President. I'd rather have my son say 'I seen' when he had saw something than say 'I have saw' when he ain't seen nothing."

One of the best-liked farmers in these parts is Bert Childers! And he has the best way of beatin' the man shortage, too.

Come husking time, Bert invites all of his farmer neighbors over to have a glass of beer.

When they ask politely "Where's the beer?" Bert points to a bucket-full of frosty bottles in the middle of the field.

"All you got to do," he says, "is work your way out to it."

Well, Bert's idea has caught on all over the countryside.

Folks are pitching in to help their neighbors harvest grain, and fruit, and vegetables—and are taking their reward in sociability when the job's done.

And from where I sit, that's a mighty healthy picture of American life—people working together to get in the food this country needs—and afterwards, sittin' around like good friends, over a moderate glass of wholesome beer. I'm for it!

Can You Picture NORTH CAROLINA without Schools?

The school bells are ringing again—calling North Carolina's youngest generation back to the job of learning to be good and useful citizens. We've all come to think of a good education for our children as the natural birthright of young Americans—but building up and administering a school system as fine as North Carolina's is a gigantic task.

of each institution, to local and county school boards and to the Office of Superintendent of Public Instruction. We of the Greyhound Lines take the same pride as all other North Carolinians in our State's educational achievements. We know that our own organization is aiding the school system both with tax support and transportation service. Those of us whose children are benefiting directly from the splendid schooling afforded them feel doubly proud.

Nearly 900,000 students are enrolled each year in North Carolina's schools and colleges. There are 4,111 primary schools, 990 secondary schools and 52 colleges and universities. The range of studies runs from kindergarten games through the three "R's" to the most advanced scientific and sociological research. Thousands of teachers are devoting their lives to this work—and to them goes much of the credit for its success, as well as to the administrators
