This Program Speaks for Temperance

This Committee's chief aim is to maintain wholesome conditions in places where legal beer is sold.

This is accomplished by educating beer dealers and checking conditions in retail beer outlets... and by assisting authorities to maintain high standards of law observance.

This program of Self-Regulation, in operation since 1939, has had the noteworthy effect of weeding out most of those who abuse their license privileges.

The beer industry's Self-Regulation Program encourages law observance. It is a program which definitely speaks for temperance.

Kenansville, N. C., Man 54, Is "Lost" Heir To 41-Year Old Life Insurance Policy He Didn't Know Existed

A 54-year-old Kenansville, N. C., man was disclosed this week to be the "lost" heir to the proceeds of a 42-year-old life insurance policy he didn't know existed.

The man is Jessie E. Westbrook, of R. F. D. No. 1. He is the surviving son of William A. Westbrook, a North Carolina farmer to whom the policy was issued in 1905 by The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York. Mr. Westbrook named his wife, Mattie, beneficiary of the policy, but in 1908 he ceased paying premiums and endorsed the contract as a paid-up policy with a value of $95.

In the nearly four decades since that time, the insurance company heard no word either from the insured or the beneficiary. In checking on the paid-up policies in its files recently, the company sought to trace the North Carolina farmer. Through this inquiry the company learned that Mr. Westbrook had died in March, 1944, that the beneficiary also was dead and that a surviving son, Jessie, lived in Kenansville. The latter had not known of the existence of the policy, he told the company.
