Funeral Services For Wreck Victim

Funeral services were conducted in the Quinn-McCowan Funeral home Wednesday for Daniel Thomas Hagan, 48, who died in a Winston hospital early Sunday morning from injuries sustained when his motorbike was struck by a car driven by James Grady near Deep Run late Saturday afternoon. Services were in charge of the Rev. A. M. Williams, pastor of the Warsaw Methodist Church. Burial was in Pinecrest cemetery at Warsaw. Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Ethel Langston of Kinston and Mrs. C. R. Anderson of Warsaw; four brothers, Ellis of Warsaw, Glennie of Arlington, Va., and Clayton and Arnold Royall, both of Rock Falls, Ill.

Seek Next Of Kin

Because of the failure of many next of kin of deceased service men and women of World War II now buried overseas to notify the Office of the Quartermaster General, at Washington 25, D. C., the office has been seriously handicapped. Many next of kin fail to realize that when they move from one state to another or from one locality to another without notifying the Quartermaster General or The Adjutant General, a considerable amount of time is lost in searching for these next of kin so that their desires regarding the disposition of the remains of their loved ones may be obtained by the Quartermaster General.

IN WARSAW

We Welcome Window Shoppers

We don't want any privacy at all: stare into our windows all you like. Gape and feast your eyes to your heart's content. That's what our windows are for. Then when you've had your fill, march right inside our store where you can ask for the things you see in the windows — or ask to see our further selections of wonderful gifts to give at Christmas time; accessories and fashions for everyone from the new baby to granny; and plenty of wonder-workers to bring yuletide cheer right into your own home and wardrobe.
