AUTOMOBILES

Joe lends his automobile to Sam for use during Sam's vacation. Sam wrecks the car. Without contacting Joe or getting any authority from him to do so, Sam has the car towed to Tom's garage and tells Tom to "fix it up." There is a repair bill of six hundred dollars on the car, which considering the wrecked condition of the car is reasonable in amount. Sam doesn't have the money with which to pay Tom. Can Joe get the car from Tom without paying to him the six hundred dollars?

No. In North Carolina there is a statute which gives to any mechanic or artisan a possessory lien upon any article of personal property which has been altered or repaired at the request of the "owner or legal possessor." Sam was the legal possessor of the automobile at the time the repairs were authorized. Tom may continue to keep the automobile until he has paid EAON automobile until he has been paid a just and reasonable charge for work done and material furnished. There is no such statute in most of the other states; and in these jurisdictions only the owner of personal property may authorize repairs which will become a lien upon the property.

Casper Taylor buys an automobile on the installment plan. The condition sales contract or chattel mortgage given to finance company is properly registered. Taylor subsequently wrecks the automobile, and takes it to a garage where he authorizes the necessary repairs to be made upon it. The repair bill amounts to five hundred dollars. Taylor is unable to pay the garage bill. He also ceases to pay the monthly payments to the finance company. May the finance company repossess the automobile from the garage without paying to its proprietor the five hundred dollar repair bill?

No. In North Carolina a mechanic's lien for repairs is given preference to the lien of a conditional sales contract or chattel mortgage even though the latter be registered and prior in point of time. The particular repairs were authorized by a "legal possessor" of the automobile.

Bill borrow's Henry's automobile and, while being driven by Bill, it is damaged in a collision. The collision is not the result of any fault or negligence on the part of Bill. May Henry recover from Bill a judgment for the damages to his automobile?

No. Bill is not liable for any damage done to the automobile without his fault.

While John is driving an automobile he has borrowed from Aber the automobile is wrecked as the result of the negligent operation of a truck driven by Frank. May John recover the full amount of the damages from Frank?

Yes. Although the borrower is not answerable to the owner for loss or injury to the property without his fault, the borrower may sue and recover from a third person the full amount of the damages caused to the property in his possession.

The borrower holds any amount he recovers in excess of his special interest in trust for the owner of the automobile. The owner of the automobile in turn recovers this amount from the borrower.
