There will be no such thing as ie "farm states" in American pol-ics by 1982,' the Washington editor audience of southern busitold an audience of southern busi-nessmen here recently. The agri-cultural states will become increas-ingly industrialized. This process has already begun. Last year, for example, farm families received one-third, or 6.7 billion dollars of away from the farm, By 1982 we predict that fully half the inme of farm families will come from non-farm work, from employment in light industry, service trades, and other jobs.

Who will produce the food?

"The political effect of his economic change will be that the farm bloc will begin to share the view-point of the industrial states. We will see fewer and fewer of those classic legislative and political struggles between agricultural and industrial interests, the Washingbeen making the rounds.

But first, the highlights of the sew law are simply that no motor.
