Social Security

Farm landlords over the age of 65 are filing claims for their social Mrs. Forest Martin entertained sefurity benefits, according to Ernest F. Fitzpatrick, manager of the local social security district office. The number of such claims reached a pe ak early in 1958, after farmers filed their 1957 tax returns, he declares. The 1954 law which covered selfemployed farmers beginning with 1955 did not provide coverage for any landlord receiving rental income from his farm land, according to Fitzpatrick. This meant that many landlords whose sole business was farming and who actually

ion. If the landlord meets the requirements, then it is necessar that he file a Schedule F alons with his regular income tax form and pay the social security tax on his net income from this farming activity.
