Winter Fun for Children ... Inside and Out

Winter opens up an exciting world of play for children as cold weather and snow make ice-skating, sledding, snowman-building and snowball-throwing the order of the day.

But, advises the Noxzema Consumer Service, they should be carefully coached on the safety rules of these winter sports. Ice skating should never be permitted alone or in unauthorized areas, and spots where there is any traffic at all should be "off limits" for sleds.

But what about the winter days when the weather rules out fresh air play? If favorite toys start to lose their charms, there are several activities you can organize to keep a child quietly and usefully busy at home. Is your sewing kit full of miscellaneous unassorted buttons? Set a child to sorting them for you, perhaps stringing them together on pieces of heavy thread. Do you have a group of old magazines with interesting recipe sections? You can ask him to cut them out for you. Tinkering with the tool chest, fitting nuts and bolts together, playing with old locks and keys can keep a child amused for hours.

Outdoor or in, little falls, scrapes, cuts and skin irritations seem inevitable for the playing child. You can stop tears fast, actually help ease the pain of these minor childish accidents as you treat them, with a special first-aid cream from Noxzema, called Nozain. Nozain is a greaseless cream in a tube and is anesthetic, medicated and bacteriostatic. It contains Cycloform, a "local anesthetic" that acts to relieve pain in seconds. An effective bacteriostatic agent helps inhibit the growth and spread of common skin germs, helps prevent infections. And famous Noxzema medication in the Nozain formula helps heal and soothe sore skin — gets your child playing again in no time.

Farmers Reminded Cotton Acreage Release Date

Farmers who do not plant to plant all or part of their cotton allotments in 1962 can protect their cotton acreage history by releasing the allotment to the ASC County Committee, O. L. Holland, Chairman of the Duplin County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee said today.

Such acreage must be released before the deadline, which is March 23, 1962.

A farmer who plans to plant at least 75 percent of his cotton allotment this year need take no action to release any acreage in order to preserve the allotment base for his farm. But a farmer who fails to plant at least 75 percent of his 1962 allotment will find his cotton allotment will be reduced in 1963 if he fails to release the unused part of his 1962 allotment to the ASC County Committee.

By releasing the unused part of the cotton allotment to the county committee, the individual farmer's 1962 planting history will be preserved and also the planting history of the county and state. The released allotment will be apportioned by the County Committee for use by other farmers.

Here are the requirements which cotton farmers must meet in 1962 in order fully to protect their future farm allotments: The farmer must (1) plant at least 75 percent of the 1962 allotment or (2) release the acreage he does not need and plant at least 75 percent of the remainder, and (3) actually plant some cotton in 1962 if the entire allotment was released in both 1960 and 1961. (Acreage in the Conservation Reserve Program at the regular rate may be regarded as "planted" under this program provision). Holland urges farmers who do not intend to plant all of their cotton allotment in 1962 to get in touch with the ASC County Office at Kenansville, and discuss how to protect their future cotton acreage history.

ASCS Official Urges Taking Of Soil Samples

Many Tar Heel farmers are wasting fertilizer of not getting a proper return from their fertilizer because of their failure to take a soil sample. A. F. Hassell, J., State Executive Director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said that it is especially important that farmers planting legumes or grasses or improving existing stands of legumes or grasses under the Agricultural Conservation Program, determine in advance the fertilizer that will offer the most return for the plant food dollar and whether or not lime is needed, by having the soil analyzed.

Farmers who fail to anticipate their planting in time to take a soil test and receive an analysis from the State Soil Testing Laboratory are missing a good bet, Hassell said.

Some years ago pasture practices under the Acp made the taking of a soil test mandatory. This requirement was discontinued, and a soil test is no longer mandatory. Hassell said, however, that he personally, and all State officials who assisted in formulating the 1962 Agricultural Conservation Program, very strongly recommend the taking of soil samples prior to any pasture planting or improvement under the program.

Fertilizer and lime recommendations set up in the State's conservation program provide the best guide available for the entire State

Farmers Report Planting Plans

Several thousand North Carolina farmers will take part this week in the annual survey of farmers' planting intentions, made by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

State Agricultural Statistician Henry L. Rasor announced today that he is sending an official survey card to a random sample of farmers throughout the state asking each farmer to report the number of acres that he expects to plant to each major crop this year, and the number of acres planted to the same crops last year.

Reports from North Carolina farmers will become part of a nationwide report on farmers' intentions to plant, to be issued by the Statistical Reporting Service of USDA on March 19. This report, issued annually for more than 30 years, is useful to farmers in adjusting their own plans, to industries serving agriculture and to many public agencies.

Another survey on acres actually planted will be made about June 1.

Cost of Rural Electric is paid by the people they serve

True False

The Fable A recent nation-wide public opinion survey revealed that 52 per cent of the nation's influential citizens think rural electric systems are directly subsidized by our Government.

The Facts Rural electrification isn't a government give-away program! Cost of operating our rural electric system is borne by people in this area—the people who own it and use their electric service.

Monthly electric bills paid by these member-consumers cover cost of electricity, wages, equipment, and other operating costs. Also included is an additional amount which is used to pay interest and principal on Rural Electrification Administration loans. Already, approximately 1,000 rural electric systems have repaid $1½ billion on their $3½ billion REA loans used to electrify rural America.
