Taylor-Braswell United In Marriage In Home Ceremony At Five O'clock

Miss Marie Braswell of Warsaw and Mr. James Taylor of LaGrange were united in marriage, June 2, at a home ceremony at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Helen Troy Braswell. Mr. Taylor is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Taylor of LaGrange. The Reverend Paul Mall was the officiating minister.

The couple exchanged vows in the living room, after which they were taken to the dining room where a white gown and white accessories, and white carnation corsage.

Mr. Charles Taylor, brother of the bridegroom, served the groom as best man.

Mrs. Braswell chose for her daughter's wedding a beige dress with matching accessories. She wore a white orchid.

The bridegroom's mother wore a floral designed black and white dress with white accessories. She also wore a white orchid.

RECEPTION

Immediately following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a reception. The dining table was covered with a white linen cloth and centered with an arrangement of red and white flowers. The wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom, graced one end of the table where Mrs. James Clark served after the honor couple cut the first slices. Miss Jean Matthew poured punch from the opposite end of the table.

After a short wedding trip of the Outer Banks, the couple will reside at Route 2, LaGrange where Mr. Taylor is engaged in farming.

Revised Federal Child Labor Bulletin Ready

RALEIGH - State Labor Commissioner Frank Crane today called attention to the U. S. Labor Department's "Child Labor Bulletin No. 101," which is now available in a revised edition.

Crane said the booklet incorporates changes in Child Labor Regulation No. 3 under the Fair Labor Standards Act, which became effective on June 1, 1962. The changes came as the result of amendments to the Act by the 1961 Congress.

The booklet explains the regulation governing employment of 14 and 15-year old minors outside school hours and other child-labor requirements under the Act.

Amendment of the regulation came after a hearing held last September and subsequent recommendations of the President's Committee on Youth Employment after changes in the Act brought an increased number of retail stores under the child-labor provisions.

The bulletin lists occupations which may and may not be performed by minors 14 and 15 years of age employed by retail, food service, and gasoline service establishments.

In retail establishments, the new regulations permit the minors to engage in such jobs as office and clerical work, selling, price marking, packing, bagging, errand and delivery work and clean-up work.

In food servicing, work is permitted which involves the preparing and serving of food and beverages, at soda mountains, lunch counters, snack bars, or cafeteria serving counters. Also permitted is the operation of such machines as dishwashers, toasters, dumb-waiters, milk-shake blenders and coffee grinders.

In gasoline service stations, work includes dispensing gasoline and oil, courtesy service and car washing (by hand), but not work involving the use of pits, racks or lifting apparatus.

Among occupations not permitted for minors 14 and 15 years of age are work performed in boiler or engine rooms, maintenance or repair of the establishment or equipment, outside window washing, cooking and baking, operating powerdriven food slicers or choppers and bakery type mixers, work in freezers and meat coolers, loading and unloading trucks, and all occupations in warehouses except office and clerical work.

Occupations not permitted for minors 14 and 15 years of age are subject to the basic 16-year minimum of the Act unless they involve an occupation declared hazardous by the Secretary of Labor. The Act sets an 18-year minimum for hazardous occupations.

The amended regulation also retains the hours standards, which prohibit employment after 7 p. m. and limit the number of hours minors 14 and 15 years of age may be employed to eight hours per day and 40 per week when school is not in session, three hours on school days, and 18 hours in school weeks.

Single copies of the revised Child Labor Bulletin No. 101 may be obtained from the Wage-Hour Office, N. C. Department of Labor, Box 1151, Raleigh.

First Permanent Display Signs For "We Sell Only Fresh N. C. Eggs" Stores

The first major food chain in North Carolina to sell only eggs produced in North Carolina has also become the first to request and erect permanent plastic display signs promoting the sale of eggs produced in the state.

This week, the large, three-color plastic indoor display signs are being put up over refrigerated egg cases in all seventy-nine stores in the Colonial Stores chain serviced by the Raleigh Division. The signs are furnished by the North Carolina Egg Marketing Association, which conducts the consumer education and promotion program for North Carolina eggs.

"The outstanding egg business of Colonial Stores has been built by purchasing and selling only those top quality eggs produced locally in North Carolina," said Steve Wilson, produce merchandiser and dairy buyer for Colonial Stores. "We have had a substantial increase in egg sales since we started merchandising eggs produced in North Carolina exclusively. We haul in no eggs from other states. We don't need to when North Carolina has earned the reputation as The Good Egg State," Wilson added.

According to Hank Wilkinson, director of the N. C. Egg Marketing Association program, all three of the major chain stores operating in North Carolina have been very cooperative in selling and promoting eggs produced in North Carolina. The two other chains, A&P and Wan-Dixie, are making plans to purchase all of their eggs from North Carolina suppliers on a year-round basis. Management of all three chains has made arrangements to start identifying eggs produced in North Carolina with the trademark of MR. GODFORYOU, the friendly North Carolina egg personality, and the wording "Produced in North Carolina, The Good Egg State."

Many farmers and packers are now using the trademark on their egg cartons and cases. Those eggs sold in chain store cartons will have the North Carolina trademark on the tape used to seal the egg cartons.

"These farmers producing eggs and selling directly to a food store are also entitled to use these permanent plastic, indoor display signs to promote their eggs," said Wilkinson. "Should the demand exceed the supply, more of the Henny-Penny money will be budgeted and more signs will be ordered," he added.

The program conducted by the North Carolina Egg Marketing Association is financed by the egg producers of North Carolina who assess themselves one cent for each hen commercially
