See Baby Sitter Knows What To Do In Case of Fire

Do you employ a baby sitter when you and your husband go out for an evening?

If so, here are a few tips as to what you should do before you leave the baby sitter in charge:

Both parents and the baby sitter should know one another, and the sitter should have a sense of responsibility and like children.

The sitter should be told that in case of fire she should get the children out of the house, call the fire department, and notify the parents, in that order.

The sitter should know all exits from the house or apartment building, and how to get the children out of the house in case of fire.

The sitter should know how to take care of minor first aid emergencies, such as a small burn, a scraped knee or other minor injury.

The sitter should know that she should keep the children out of the kitchen if possible, and that they should never be permitted to go into the kitchen unattended.

She should know that matches should be kept out of their reach, and that electric cords and appliances are not playing things.

The sitter should be provided with flashlights to use in case the lights should fail.

Parents should tell the sitter at what time they expect to return home, and telephone her if they are unavoidably delayed.

The sitter should be provided with a card giving the address and phone number of where the parents will be if they are visiting friends. It should also bear the name, address and telephone number of a nearby relative or neighbor. She should also be provided with the number of the fire department, the police department, a doctor and a hospital. Suitable arrangements should be made for seeing the sitter home.

Those Whom Other Folks Pass By

I want to give a helping hand
To those whom other folks pass by,
And lift them up and help them stand
For something good and great and high,
Thus proving that within their lives
There's yet a principle sublime,
Where some have thought but evil thrives
That can well lead to shame and crime.

Sometimes we find within the heart
Of those whom other folks pass by
A strong desire to do their part
To bless the world before they die;
But men have dealt them blows and knocks
Along life's rugged, thorny way
Until it seems their many shocks
Have crushed and put them down to stay.

I want to speak a word of cheer
To wretched folks that sin has crushed,
And shed a sympathetic tear,
Though Satan seeks to keep me hushed,
I mean to breathe an earnest prayer
From day to day as moments fly,
And have within my heart a care
For those whom other folks pass by.

How sad the plight of those who fall,
Or those whom other folks put down,
Who seldom have an upward call,
But often see the world's cold frown!
These could be jewels in the rough
For whom we ought to pray and sigh,
Though classed by men as being "tough,"
And so they only pass them by.

If polished by the Master's touch
And filled with holy love and grace,
The Savior only knows how much
They might in life adorn some place;
Therefore I'll help such fallen men
The better way of life to try,
And hope to see both now and then
Great souls whom other folks pass by.

OUTLIVES ENEMIES
"Wal" bragged the ancient patient, "I'll be 80 my next birthday and I haven't an enemy in the world."
"Gee, that's remarkable," said the young one.
"Yep," went on the old one, "I've outlived every darned one of 'em."
