Nothing Fails When God Is In It

Nothing fails when God is in it, Be it great or be it small, Though sometimes we're made to wonder Why for us He gives a call,

When we feel so weak and helpless For the work He calls us to, As we think there should be others Stronger far than me and you.

But the God of grace and wisdom Knows the gifts and hearts of men Who will bless the lives of others With the tongue or with the pen; Who will sacrifice and labor

In the lands both far and near, Out among all kinds of people, All of whom to God is dear.

Nothing fails when Goo is in it-If it's preach or pray or sing. Or invite the poor lost sinner To the altar of our King; Or to help a little pilgrim

. Who is tempted hard with sin, Just to pray and hold quite steady That the battle he may win. Nothing fails when God is in it

When we give our best to him, Even if we lift a candle Just to light some pathway dim; Or to give a drink of water To some fainty, thirsty soul, Who has fallen by th wayside

On his journey to the goal.

Outlook For Grads Good

SALISBURY -- What is the employment outlook for the aduates of Rowan Technical Institute who received nas last Friday?

"Very good" was the answer today from John Ho-bart, director of student per-sonnel, who handles job placement.

"We have received more requests for graduates than we can fill," he said. Area firms have been calling Ro-wan Tech almost everyday for the past month seeking skilled personnel trained for graduates than we can fill," he said. Area firms have been calling Rowan Tech almost everyday for the past month seeking skilled personnel trained for entry-level employment.

"The shortage of skilled and health care personel appears to be get-ting greater each month," Hobart said. Of the 54 Rowan Tech graduates, 22 already had jobs before graduation, and others are interviewing various firms in the area this

Most of the 8 Electrician trade graduates with Cannon Mills in Kanna-polis, Walter Carter Electrical Contractors of Salisbury, Electric Service Co. of China Grove, and E. F. Belk and Son Electrical Contractors in Mooresville.

Automotive mechanics have accepted jobs with Foil Motor McCanless Motor Co. and Ray Coggins' Motors, all of Salisbury. Others are con-sidering jobs close to their homes in Concord, Albemarle and Mocksville.

Several air conditioning and refrigeration graduates checking on jobs with refrigerated transportation panies in Charlotte, others plan to locate in the ediate area.

Draftsman and machinists are in strong demand. One draftsman is with Power Curbers, Inc. and a machinist graduate is at Miller Equipment Co. in Salisbury, while two others have accepted employment with a new industry, Veeder - Root, Inc., at Eliza-bethtown. Others are checking leads in Albemarle, Charlotte, and Winston-Salem.

Six of the eight practical nursing graduates are em-ployed at Rowan Memorial Hospital. One plans to work Much excitement, a lot in Statesville and another in planning, and high ho

Mrs. Hasty will be assisted by Mrs. Ruth Goodlett, who known locally as one is at home with younger chil-iren and who is sensitive to heir needs.

Although the Kindergar-ten is sponsored by The Church of the Good Shepnerd, no restrictions placed upon the enrollment of upils. Children who have had he advantage of Kindergar-en, are widely recognized as ceing better suited to begin public school. Because they have had experience of associating with groups of child-ren their own age, Kinder-garten children learn faster, and are more at ease in the often radical change from the home to the classroom.

A typical day in the lift of a Kindergarten is difficul to describe. It may includ nothing more than playin nothing more than with blocks, and les with blocks, and learning new group game, such as ri around the rosy. But it a also include learning how tie a shoe, or how for in line for refreshments, bof which are necessary any child to know how do. Things which are tak for granted by adults are for granted by adults are of-ten big problems for little children.

The Cooleemee Kindergar The Cooleemee kindergar-ten is designed to let any child enrolled learn what he is ready to learn. The needs of the children where they are now is the prime concern.

Equipment for the Kinder garten is designed especially for small children. Tables, chairs, see-saws, sliding board, little rocker boats, and even a doll bed and miniature kit-chen stove and sink are a-mong the usable equipment in the Kindergarten. Mr. Roger 8 Electrician have jobs ls in Kannaurter Electrician to the Kindergarten. Mr. Roger Funderburk, a skilled carpenter, has given his time and effort to build, partially design, and finish this equip-

> Some of the equipment is imaginative. In the mind of the Kindergarten child, a eemingly simple rocker boat becomes a railroad car, ready for a journey around the world. A trip down the sliding board becomes a ski trip down a steep mountain, and a full meal may be cooked on the ply-wood electric range, and served on special-ly made tea tables. These are things which the adult world often forgets, but which chil-dren need and love. dren need and love.

> Kindergarten has its serious side, too. Any parent knows how children may become upset over things which seem small in day to day living. Two children want the same toy, two boys get in a small fight, or Billy might push Johnny down, amid much crying and noise. A skilled teacher knows how to handle such things so that the children learn how to play together, which is childhood foundation for knowing how to live together in the adult world.
