Vivian Epperson And Richard Coulter Marry At Woodleaf

Miss Vivian Elaine Epperson became the bride of Richard Brandon Coulter on Friday evening at seven o'clock at the home of the bridegroom in Woodleaf. The Reverend Alan B. Wells of Unity Presbyterian Church, Woodleaf officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Porter Epperson of Route 1, Salisbury. She is a 1965 graduate of West Rowan High School and is presently attending Salisbury Business College where she plans to graduate in March of 1966.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Flake Brady Coulter of Woodleaf. He is a 1963 graduate of West Rowan High School and attended North Carolina State College at Raleigh. He is presently attending Rowan Technical Institute where he plans to be graduated in October. He is employed by Leisure Lads, Inc.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a street-length gown of white nylon eyelet taffeta over ice blue peau de soie designed with a fitted bodice, a modified scoop neckline and a bell-shaped skirt finished at the front waist with a self bow holding four tiers of silk illusion which formed a short train. Her shoulder-length bouffant veil of tiered silk illusion fell from a lace and seed pearl crown and she carried a white lace covered Bible with a bouquet of lilies of the valley and an orchid.

Mrs. Charles Blume of Spence, the sister of the bride, was the matron of honor. She wore a pink street-length dress of whipped cream crepe with a matching pill box hat and shoes and carried a long stemmed pink sensation rose.

Flake Brady Coulter was best man for his son.

For their wedding trip to Ocean Drive Beach, South Carolina, the bride wore a white nylon taffeta dress with black accessories and the orchid from her Bible.

The couple will be at home on Route 6 after September 7.

RECEPTION

The parents of the bride and groom honored the couple at a reception at the bridegroom's home following the ceremony. Miss Jeanette Hall and Mrs. Bette Coulter assisted in serving.

The bride's table was covered with a white Italian cut-work linen cloth and centered with a crystal candelabrum with epergnettes holding pink carnations, white snapdragons tuberoses and snowdrift pompons. The three-tier wedding cake, decorated on top with a miniature bridal figurine, was wreathed with a ruff of satin and lace. A crystal punch bowl was at the other end of the table.

How Duke Power's "Good Neighbor Policy" assures you an abundance of low cost electricity

Almost every day of the week Duke Power trades electricity with utilities in our neighboring states to serve you better.

It takes a vast network of high-voltage transmission lines—"interconnections" we call them—to make this kind of trading possible. But it's well worthwhile because:

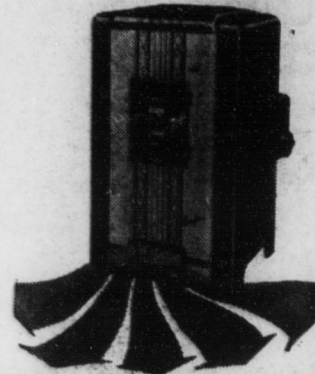

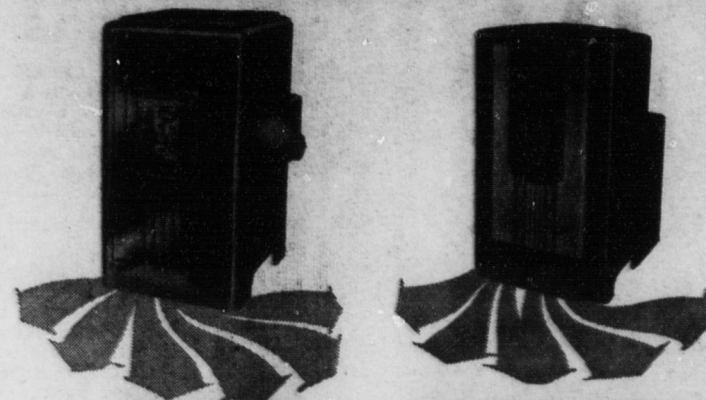

- 1) It assures you of an abundant supply of electricity at all times.
- 2) It means extra dependability of service.
- 3) And, of course, it helps us keep your electric rates down.

How? Well, it's a fact that big generating plants operate more efficiently than small ones... and at less cost per kilowatt, too. So at times it's actually more economical for our neighbors to borrow power from our biggest and newest plants than to operate their own small, less-efficient older ones. And, of course, the same holds true for us.

Interconnection is just one more example of the way Duke Power and other investor-owned, tax-paying utilities work together to assure you an abundant supply of dependable electricity... at the lowest possible cost.
