New Showboat Dinner Theatre To Open Soon Near Kernersville

A new Showboat Dinner Theatre will open shortly near Kernersville. It will be the first legitimate theatre-dinner boat in this area. Robert H. Murray, manager, said a Broadway comedy-hit would be the opening feature when the construction is completed.

The theatre, simulating an old time Mississippi River floating palace, will have room for 100 patrons who first will select fine foods from a smorgasbord in the Mid-victorian dining room adjoining a proscenium stage.

Ten nights at the landing, a special introductory nightly series to celebrate completion of the theatre, will be a glitter with notables, Murray said.

The theatre-dining room will be in a fire proof building, although from the outside it will appear to be a boat just arrived down a mirrored Mississippi made up of a new pond beside the East Prong of the Deep River.

Each four weeks a new Broadway comedy hit will be brought in, and each time the bill of fare will change along with the show.

The Showboat Dinner Theatre signs will grace the highway just out of Kernersville at Route 68, which goes to High Point from the Airport.

N. C. Retail Trade Statistics

Automobile and trucks, with the fuel and accessories to keep them running, took 27.4 per cent of North Carolina's retail trade dollars in 1963.

Food purchases in the State during the same year accounted for 23.9 cents of every retail dollar -- 19.7 cents for groceries consumed at home and 4.2 cents for meals and snacks eaten out.

For every dollar spent on men's and boys' clothing during 1963 in North Carolina, $1.86 was spent for women's and girls' apparel.

These statistics are taken from a new report on the 1963 Census of Business, Retail Trade Merchandise Lines, just issued by the U. S. Department of Commerce, Bureau of the Census.

The report shows data on the number of establishments, the amount of sales and the percentage of sales, of specific merchandise lines for the entire South Atlantic States area, consisting of Delaware, District of Columbia, Florida, Georgia, Maryland, North Carolina, South Carolina, Va., and West Va.; for each of the nine States; for each Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area and for the part of each State not located in any Standard Metropolitan Statistical area.

Figures are listed for 25 classes of items in more than 100 kinds of retail establishments in each State and for the South Atlantic States area as a whole, providing an index to sales of various merchandising lines and the percentages accounted for by those lines in total retail sales.

SENATOR ERVIN SAYS

WASHINGTON -- The demand for repeal of Section 14 (b) of the Taft-Hartley Act which authorizes the States to enact right-to-work laws, is a demand for compulsory Unionism. Compulsory unionism is based upon the startling proposition that the right to work is a right which the union may sell and which the individual American must buy if he is to be permitted to earn daily bread for himself and his family.

Those who would rob supposedly free Americans of their right to join or refrain from joining a union at their own election advance three arguments to justify the destruction of this freedom. These arguments are as follows:

1. That "union security", that is, the existence of the union and its ability to operate effectively, depends upon compulsory membership.
2. That compulsory unionism is merely a form of democratic majority rule.
3. That the union negotiates contracts for the benefit of all the employees of the bargaining unit, and compulsory unionism is necessary to make unwilling employees pay for the benefits such union action confers upon them and keep them from being so-called free riders.

The argument that union security is dependent upon compulsory unionism is totally lacking in validity. Unions are voluntary associations. In this respect, they are like churches, civic organizations, and political parties. These voluntary associations are wholly dependant upon voluntary persuasion for securing members, and notwithstanding this fact, exist and function effectively. Any union can do likewise. Indeed, a union is more secure in its existence and its ability to function effectively if it obtains members as a result of its good work rather than by compulsion.

The argument that compulsory unionism is merely a form of democratic majority rule is equally fallacious. Democratic majority rule recognizes the right of the minority to dissent and oppose the programs of the majority. When employees are required to join and support a union regardless of their desire to oppose it and the programs, the whole basis of democratic majority rule disappears and is supplanted by monopoly rule, which has no place in a free society.

The so-called free rider argument affords no justification for compulsory unionism. In a sense all of us are free riders. Many voluntary associations, such as churches, and civic, fraternal, and political organizations, carry on activities which benefit a great many of us who do not contribute any financial or other support to them. For this reason, it is absurd for any particular voluntary organization which may happen to benefit any group of people to demand that such people be compelled to support it financially or otherwise against their will. is essentially what unions do when they demand compulsory unionism.

I submit that it is incompatible with freedom for any working man to be coerced by unionism agreements to contribute money to union programs when he himself is not convinced that they are for his benefit or that of his country. When all is said, no union needs a compulsory unionism for that purpose.
