Daytona Beach Races Nov. 27-28

Daytona Beach, Fla. - Eleven races, involving 17 classes, and all of 45 minutes duration, will be run at the American Road Race of Champions at Daytona International Speedway on Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 27-28.

Champions and high point finishers of the SCCA's six national divisions will compete in the showdown run-offs over two of the Speedway's track-road courses.

The bigger faster cars will fight it out over the 3.1 mile circuit, with the smaller ones duelling over the 1.6-mile layout.

No fewer than 81 champions of their classes will compete. The remainder of the field, which totals 221, is made up of second and third place finishers. More than 25 alternates will be at Daytona in the hope that some of the leaders will fall by the wayside in the qualifying trials on Friday, November 26th, with engine trouble.

Six races will be run on Saturday, five on Sunday.

Cars that will be seen in action include production cars A through H, modifieds C through H, and Formula Vee, Formula C and Formula B.

This is the second annual American Road Race of Champions. The inaugural was held last year at Riverside Raceway in California and there were 189 entrants.

Each of the 11 races promise fierce competition, for each field will be made up of the best cars and drivers from all over the nation. In many of the classes the champions and runnersup are separated by only a point or two, and in many the third place point winner is close as the next second to the man and car ahead of him.

Almost every make of sports cars will be seen in action during the two days, plus many "special" modified jobs. The cars range from Ferraris to Sprites, from Cobras to Triumphs, from McLarens to Sunbeams.

Prices range from $1 on the opening day of practice on Thursday, November 25, to $4 on the closing day.
